

MRS. THAW AGAIN ON STAND BUT MANY ANSWERS BARRED

Supreme Effort Will be Made to Get in Evidence
The Will Made by the Defendant in 1905

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HAD BEST OF DELMAS

Latter Asked for Early Adjournment to Give Him Time to Prepare Expert Testimony to Lay Foundation for Introduction of Certain Testimony.

New York, Feb. 11.—Every effort of Harry K. Thaw's attorneys is being bent to day in an effort to have admitted in evidence the will made by the young millionaire on the eve of April, 1905. In the crowded little court room all interest centers in this feature, but along Broadway, throughout the Tenderloin, and even along Fifth avenue, a different question was the paramount one. It was: "Is there going to be a muck-raking?"

There is good reason to believe that previous to the opening of the Thaw trial some sort of an agreement had been reached between the district attorney's office and the counsel for the defense by which every effort would be made to keep the trial as clean as possible. This was not what, in sporting parlance, would be termed a "frame up," and neither side promised to waive any point that would be of value to it.

The only object apparently was to protect the public morals as far as possible. No mud throwing or character blackening that could be avoided was to be indulged in.

TO DISCOUNT TESTIMONY.

Today there is very good ground for believing that this working agreement will be knocked in the head. Everyone concedes that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's wonderful confession on the witness stand made a deep impression on the jury and that it is going to prove the defenses strongest card. No one appreciates this fact more than Jerome, and it is said that he had determined to discount the girl's testimony even at the cost of exposing in the spot light of publicity every tarnished reputation in New York's millionaire Bohemia.

It is said that he will seek to show Harry K. Thaw in the worst light possible, that he will drag in all the evidence possible of Thaw's escapades with other women, that he will ridicule the young man's crusade against White's licentiousness and seek to cast a shadow over Thaw's one redeeming characteristic—his apparent love for his beautiful little wife, and will allege that even after marriage he harkened to the call of the great white way.

Such a course on the part of the state can produce but one result. The defense will resort to similar tactics. Thaw's attorneys have in reserve a mass of evidence, it is said, with which they will paint the character of Stanford White in the blackest of colors. It is said they have gone back over the past 20 years and have accumulated a mass of evidence which will throw weird side lights on the reputations of many of the witnesses on whom the state will count. From the skill which Delmas has already displayed at this sort of thing, there is reason to believe that he will succeed in getting this evidence in, too.

NERVOUSNESS AMONG 400.

The nervousness felt today in certain circles of New York upper crust is inspired by the report that in its proof of his insanity, attorneys for Thaw will introduce evidence of Thaw's crazy manner of playing bridge whist. The young Pittsburgher is said to have dropped thousands of dollars as a result of his reckless game, and if his attorneys should dwell on this feature it would mean the summoning to the witness stand of many persons high in society and clubdom. Questions as to how much they won from Thaw would be embarrassing to many of these winners.

Today the fight is being waged over the admissibility of Thaw's will which, if admitted, promises to be next to the testimony of his wife.

the strongest link in the chain of Thaw's defense. What Evelyn's testimony was to the plea of justification, the will promises to be to the plea of insanity. The document is a jumbled mess, bearing every indication of being the ramblings of a weak brain, but standing out clearly are two features which promise to have a great deal of weight with the jury—the appropriation of $50,000 to be used in prosecuting Thaw's assassin, showing Thaw really feared death at White's hand and the setting aside of a $75,000 fund to be used in caring for girls ruined by White, an evidence of the effect upon Thaw's mind of the treatment accorded Evelyn Nesbit by Stanford White.

EVELYN TAKES THE STAND.

New York, Feb. 11.—The first announcement of the day was an edict from the bench that with the exception of the six actively engaged newspaper women no member of the gentler sex was to be permitted in the court room during the remainder of the Thaw trial. The order caused a buzz of indignation among a regiment of cackling scandal mongers and sensation seekers who were drawn out by the beautiful spring weather to lay siege to the outer doors of the criminal court building. Their protests were in vain, however, and when court was called to order the only women present were the six designated.

Thaw was brought into court at 10.30 looking fresh and in good spirits, but here was a flash of disappointment on his face as he noted that no member of his family was in court. Judge Delmas accompanied Mrs. Harry K. Thaw to court, but left her in the clerk's office, where she remained to greet her husband when he was brought into the prisoner's pen.

J. D. Lyons, vice president of the Union National bank of Pittsburgh, was the first witness called by the defense for the purpose of identifying the will of Harry K. Thaw, on which today's fight seems to center.

District Attorney Jerome immediately objected to Mr. Lyons as a witness. His contention was the same as that raised last week when the will was temporarily barred on the ground that no evidence had been offered to lay the foundation of proof of Thaw's insanity. Jerome insisted on some further proof of Harry Kendall Thaw's weak-mindedness which brought from Judge Delmas the first word upholding Dr. Wiley—the victim of Jerome's vivisection—as an expert.

In his answer Judge Delmas declared that while the defense has an abundance of expert testimony to introduce proving Thaw was insane at the time that he shot Stanford White, it is the purpose of the defense to introduce the facts in the case, first, enumerate Thaw's eccentricities and then clinch the case by introduction of the testimony of the experts at the close.

After a long wrangle between Jerome and Delmas, following an objection by the former to the testimony of Dr. Lyons on the ground that the defense had not yet established a basis for the insanity plea, the prosecutor backed down. Lyons was allowed to testify to having received from Harry Kendall Thaw prior to April 1906, the will over which the fight is being made.

Mr. Lyons declared that the envelope containing the will was unbroken during the time it was in his possession and up to the time he surrendered it the latter part of November, 1906. Attorney Gleason, for Thaw, then took the stand and testified that the envelope came into his possession with the seal unbroken on December 11, 1906.

At this point Attorney Delmas again offered the will in evidence, but Jerome's objection on the ground of the passing of the will from Lyons to Gleason without being opened was sustained and the will was temporarily laid aside.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was then recalled to the stand.

Instantly the court room which had been in drowsy state became surcharged with excitement. There was a shuffling of feet and craning of necks, and the little wife of the defendant, still clad in the simple costume that she has worn throughout the trial, took her place on the stand. Delmas then asked the District Attorney to produce the note which Mrs. Harry Kendall Thaw wrote to her husband at the Cafe Martin on the night of the tragedy.

Several minutes elapsed before this bit of evidence could be produced and during the interim Evelyn was the target of every pair of eyes in the room. She appeared composed and several times smiled at her husband. Evelyn glanced about the room but her husband never took his eyes off the small girlish figure.

After the note had been duly identified, Delmas asked Evelyn if she could identify it.

"I can," was the answer.

"Did you write it?"

"Yes."

Delmas then read the note to the court. It said: "The 'B' was here a moment ago, but went out again."

"To whom did that 'B' refer?"

"To Stanford White."

"Now, I will ask you," said Delmas in a very gentle tone as he noticed the frightened tones of the voice of the witness, "if you ever heard Mr. Thaw speak of any threat made against his life by Stanford White?"

Jerome objected and Justice Fitzgerald sustained the objection, and the question was re-stated. Jerome again objected on the ground that the question did not bear on the insanity defense but had to do with the plea of self-defense which had not as yet been established by Thaw's attorneys.

THAW HAD A PISTOL.

"Will you state if on Christmas eve, 1903, or any evening subsequent, Thaw made any statement to you of any malefactor set on him by White?" asked Delmas. The question was objected to and sustained. Replying to a question the witness said she saw a pistol in Thaw's possession in New York after Christmas eve, 1902. "Did he carry his pistol any time except when he was in New York?"

"No."

"Did you ever say anything to Thaw about a visit you had made to Miss May MacKenzie at the hospital when she was ill, and at which White was present?" asked Delmas.

"Yes," answered Evelyn.

Jerome again launched into a spirited contest with Delmas on the question as to whether the line of evidence which was along self defense lines, was admissible at this time, when the defense was standing on an insanity plea. Jerome's objection was sustained and the answer ruled out. Witness told of being at the theater in 1904 with her husband and a woman friend named Mrs. Caine, and saw White there.

MANY QUESTIONS RULED OUT.

"Do you remember the effect the seeing of White had on your husband?" asked Delmas. This question was ruled out. A question as to a statement Mrs. Thaw made to Harry, when he and the young woman were returning from Europe in 1904, relating to the relations of White with some young women, women, were ruled out. A question as to what Mrs. Thaw had told her husband in Paris in 1903, as to White's treatment of another girl met the same fate.

"When was it Thaw made the proposal of marriage to you which you accepted?"

"About April, 1905," answered Mrs. Thaw, blushing and hanging her head.

An attempt by Delmas to have her repeat her husband's proposal was ruled out. Court adjourned at 12.20 on the request of Delmas in order that he might have time to prepare some expert testimony for the lack of which most questions to the witnesses this morning were ruled out.

"I SAID, MY GOD! HE HAD SHOT HIM!"

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Being compelled to endure the long ordeal of a day in court, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was naturally the center of attraction as she charged Stanford White with having drugged and wronged her, according to her alleged confession to her husband.

THE PROGRAM IS TO CHECK POWER OF THE PEERS

London, Feb. 11.—The British parliament reassembled Tuesday in the presence of King Edward and Queen Alexandra at a full state ceremony. The reopening has aroused intense interest in London, as the government intends to immediately inaugurate measures to check the powers of the house of lords. The government's determination to make the fight now is due to the defeat of the education bill by the upper house last year and the prospective defeat of all other features of the ministerial program. King Edward has insisted that the speech from the throne be kept strictly secret, and while the address will doubtless refer to the long list of pending parliamentary measures, it is probable that some reference to the house of peers may be included. The Irish question also is likely to occupy the attention of the session, the government being about ready to submit the proposed reform measures. Elaborate preparations have been made for the street pageant and the gorgeous ceremony in the house of lords.

STATISTICS OF IRON AND STEEL

Washington, Feb. 11.—The exportation of iron and steel manufacturers reached their highest record during the past year, according to figures compiled by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. The total of these products exported in the calendar year 1906 amounted to $172,500,000, an increase of $20,000,000 over the preceding year. There has been an increase of 75 per cent in the exportation of these articles in the last three years. Practically every one of the important articles or groups of articles show in this gain.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 11.—State Senator Howard Robb died at his home in Arkansas City after a protracted illness from malarial fever. He was 45 years of age and was the first secretary of the Arkansas railroad commission.

TO ASSIST PROSECUTION AT ATHENS

Athens, O., Feb. 11.—Governor Harris has sent Assistant Attorney General W. H. Miller to Athens to assist prosecuting attorney J. M. Foster in the prosecution of Horace Reder and Henry Harkins, defendants charged with manslaughter in the death of William J. Barnes, a patient of the state hospital. C. F. Bann, the other defendant implicated, has not been found. He, with the other two were discharged by Superintendent Hanson immediately after an investigation made by the doctor of the institution before the coroner was notified. Reder and Harkins were in their homes at Columbus, Ohio, at the time of the shooting, but were taken to the state hospital.

Among the evidence presented at the trial, Foster is filing up against the accused are previous charges of assault of patients by the three defendants. Reder is said to have taken part in a previous fatal assault. This case was never brought to court. James Wilson, a nurse of the victim, says that when he was notified of Barnes' death he was told by the hospital authorities that he had been found in death for some time and died of lung trouble. Reder and Harkins were taken to the hospital and admitted to the hospital.

CONTROVERSY TO BE ADJUSTED BY ARBITRATION

Panama, Feb. 11.—Francisco J. Heriberto, Chilean minister to the Central American republics, who is in this city on his way to Valparaiso, said: "Before my departure from Costa Rica I offered my services to arbitrate the questions in dispute between Honduras and Nicaragua, in case the San Salvador tribunal could not reach an acceptable decision. Both President Bonilla of Honduras and President Zelaya of Nicaragua wired me such conciliatory messages that I left believing firmly that war between the two republics would not result."

TELEGRAPHERS WANT WAGE ADJUSTMENT

Chicago, Feb. 11.—The discharge of four telegraphers employed by the Western Union Telegraph company and ignoring of a petition for wage adjustment signed by 700 employees were presented at a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Commercial Telegraphers' union. Resolutions were adopted giving the necessary authority to the local executive board to handle the matter, and if necessary call a special meeting of Commercial Telegraphers' Union No. 1.

PRIZE WINNERS IN PRESS CONTEST

Denver, Colo., Feb. 11.—The contest for the best descriptive article on Colorado, inaugurated by the Denver Press club last summer for the benefit of the delegates to the convention of the International League of Press Clubs, held in Denver in August, is closed. The prizes were awarded as follows: J. G. Ingalls, Free Press, Detroit, $250; Opie Read, Inter Ocean, Chicago, $250; M. J. Keyes, Star Chronicle, St. Louis, $200; R. M. Brinkhoff, Blade, Toledo, $175. Lewis G. Early, Times, Reading, Pa., $125.

A FIRM STAND IS URGED UPON MAYOR SCHMITZ

AND THE CALIFORNIA DELEGATES IN WASHINGTON FOR CONFERENCE.

WANT JAP COOLIES EXCLUDED

A Final Definite Agreement Will Probably Not Be Reached Until Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The policy they will pursue in connection with the question of the Japanese and the schools has been agreed on by Mayor Schmitz and the members of the San Francisco school board at a conference here.

Mayor Schmitz and the members of the board have refused to make any statement as to what position they will take when they will confer with President Roosevelt and Secretary Root. In a telegram, however, to the California Exclusion league, Mayor Schmitz declares the delegation has "not made any arrangements up to date of any kind." More than 300 telegrams were received by Mayor Schmitz and members of the board urging them to stand firm for the exclusion of the Japanese coolies from the United States.

A telegram received by Mayor Schmitz from the president of the California Exclusion league in part reads: "Papers announce in big headlines that 'Schmitz deserts labor for Japanese, mayor and school board make complete surrender.' We can not and will not believe it. Exclusion League demands exclusion by act of congress. Treaty will not exclude. Sovereign rights must not be bartered away by promises and should not be basis for compromise. We will not yield one iota of our rights as a sovereign people, regardless of cost or consequences."

Mayor Schmitz's reply to this telegram in part follows: "Telegram received. Announcement of papers absolutely false. Have made no arrangement up to date of any kind. Story false like all other statements made about me. I am a Californian trying to do my duty to my state."

At this afternoon's conference the Californians will present their views to President Roosevelt in writing, and a final, definite agreement probably will not be reached until Tuesday. It can be authoritatively stated that the president will assure Mayor Schmitz and the school board that if they will agree to end the agitation by abolishing the oriental schools the president will in turn use his influence to secure a treaty with Japan that will exclude coolie labor from this country.

Exclusion of Japanese.

Tokyo, Feb. 11.—The Jiji in a leading editorial anent the San Francisco incident expresses disbelief in the possibility of the adoption of a new treaty mutually restricting labor immigration as a solution of the public school controversy. The Jiji declares that it is aware that a large number of Japanese are going to San Francisco from Hawaii, and that this immigration is causing jealousy on the part of the white labor, but it contends that this is due to the imperfect provisions of the existing law, which might be remedied by an agreement on the part of both governments, but which should constitute an entirely separate subject of discussion as not concerning the San Francisco dispute, in which latter Japan stands upon her treaty rights.

Japanese Driven Off.

Woodburn, Ore., Feb. 11.—Much feeling was engendered here by the Southern Pacific laying off white men employed on the railroad section at this point and replacing them with eight or ten Japanese. The feeling ran so high that 50 Americans warned the Japanese to leave town. There was no violence and the Japanese left.

DASTARD'S DEED

Well Known Woman of Memphis is Killed on the Street by Unknown Assassin.

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Mercedes Donovan, wife of Eugene V. Donovan, an officer of the Memphis fire department, was felled by an unknown assailant with a blow which broke her neck, while she was returning from a shopping tour, accompanied by her three-year-old daughter and several other children. Robbery was evidently the motive for the attack. The attack occurred within a short distance of Mrs. Donovan's home, in a thickly populated section of the city. She died within a short time.

William J. Oliver, Who Wants to Dig the Canal

Only Thirty-nine Years Old, but a Contractor Who Has Done Big Things.

"A Real Captain of Industry"—An Expert in Concrete Work, Who is Said to Be the Biggest Railroad Builder in the South—His Backer, Frederick C. Stevens, a Successful Financier, Has Charge of a Vast Canal Fund.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

JUST now the American public is highly interested in the personality of William J. Oliver, the contractor who may build the Panama canal, and in that of Frederick C. Stevens, his financial backer. The public is interested in anybody who looks big enough actually to undertake and perform this very important but nevertheless pesky job. So many men have marched up the hill and then marched down again, doing little or nothing toward the consummation devoutly to be wished, that the patient public is beginning to yawn.

Now it appears that Mr. Oliver will be the contractor. He is a young man, only thirty-nine, but he seems to have done things. One enthusiast calls him Theodore Roosevelt No. 2. This characterization, of course, refers to his strenuity. He is said to be the biggest railroad contractor in the south. Great railroad works are progressing in the south, and to be the chief figure in constructing these means something. It is estimated that Mr. Oliver is now engaged in construction work which will aggregate in cost about $32,000,000. The fund now available for all the great land reclamation projects undertaken by the United States government in the semiarid west is but little more than that sum. Mr. Oliver's undertakings therefore put him in the class of those who do big things.

"Real Captain of Industry."

It is not improbable that the youth of Mr. Oliver appeals to the president as favorably as any other of his qualities. Mr. Roosevelt, as the world knows, likes to put young men forward. Young Mr. Oliver is called "a marked. "I have just begun to fight." His enemies saw him appointed to a post in which he would have the expenditure of $101,000,000 for the enlargement of the Erie canal, next to the Panama canal the greatest engineering project in the world. And Governor Hughes appointed him without consulting any politicians. It was like a bombshell bursting in the camp of the machine statesmen. Governor Hughes, elected on his record, regarded Mr. Stevens as a fit man to have charge of the vast canal fund—Erie canal, remember—and made him superintendent of public works.

Now Mr. Stevens comes forward as financial backer to Contractor Oliver, whose bid on the Panama canal job was the lowest submitted. Mr. Oliver proposes to take the responsibility of seeing that the canal is dug and concreted, its entrances dredged, its locks built and everything put in proper shape for the passage of ships from ocean to ocean, his compensation to be 0.75 per cent of the cost of construction. This means that if the canal shall cost $200,000,000 the contractor will get $150,000,000 for his services. Some figure estimates that it will cost only about $140,000,000. It may be finished in six years and maybe not for twelve years. The contract will set a definite term, the contractor to get a bonus for each month under that term or pay a forfeit for each month over the limit.

Mr. Stevens says that his work will be merely the financing of the contractor in the event of the Oliver bid being finally accepted and the contract irrevocably clinched. Only $5,000,000 capitalization is required. "I already have the promise of eleven times that amount if needed," says Mr. Stevens.

It is of present interest to note that the father of Mr. Stevens was a railroad contractor. He built the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway, just to mention one monumental work. The son went to Washington about fifteen years ago and engaged in the brokerage business. Later he got into the banking line and was prominent in Washington financial circles, but he always retained his residence in the town of Attica, N. Y., where he was born fifty years ago.

How Lewis Figured It.

Mr. Oliver was the first man to suggest that the Panama canal be dug by contract. He thought over the matter for months, then sent his chief engineer to Panama to make a close inspection and report, with a view to presenting a bid for the job. The engineer's report was placed in the hands of Alfred Henry Lewis of New York, an all round author, who whipped it into literary shape in his well known style. This literary document, it is understood, was laid before President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft and no doubt had some weight in influencing them favorably toward the prospective bidder for the building of the canal. Great is the literary physician and surgeon!

Mr. Oliver has a magnificent home on the Tennessee river at Knoxville called Cherokee Place. He loves social life, is a clubman and an active Elk, but

Would Use Negro Labor.

Mr. Oliver states that if he builds the canal he will do it chiefly with negro labor. He has suggested heretofore that the government should use negroes from the United States rather than those from the West Indies or the Chinese coolies. Mr. Oliver says that the very best hands for railroad construction work are the southern negroes. He has worked them extensively. According to reports, he has advanced a rather novel notion. This is to have the southern states or cities pass vagrancy laws, compelling idle men to move on. The object would be to make it uncomfortable for idle negroes to remain in the southern states. Mr. Oliver thus hopes to "corral" them and hire them on the construction work in Panama, where he thinks they could stand the climate as well as the work, perhaps better.

Recently a younger brother of Mr. Oliver, associated with him in railroad contract work, was indicted by the federal grand jury at Knoxville, with several others, on charges of peonage. It was alleged that these men had held about a hundred negroes against their will in a railroad camp in the Chilhowee mountains, compelling them to work and not permitting them to have personal liberty. The trial resulting from the indictments lasted five days, during which W. J. Oliver sat in court and assisted the defendants. He strongly asserted their innocence of the charge of peonage. One defendant was convicted, but the jury divided as to the others, so the case will be retried.

In case Mr. Oliver should try his proposed experiment of employing the surplus negroes of the south on the canal work it would be interesting sociologically at any rate, though the average mind may be unable to grasp the problem of inducing a negro or any other man to work on the canal strip when he will not work at home.

The original intention of Uncle Sam was to dig the big ditch himself. The proposition of putting the whole project into the hands of a contractor, just as a railroad company lets out a construction job, developed later after the work had begun. Just how this plan will work out is up to the man who gets the contract. He will be building for posterity. His name will pass into history. The searchlights of all the world will be turned upon him during the years consumed in his work. Therefore it behooves the canal digger to look to his laurels.

Tree Planting by Canadian Railway.

The Canadian Pacific Railway company has begun tree planting on quite an extensive scale along its western lines, says the Canadian Forestry Journal. A contract has been let for a small acreage of breaking near Wolsley on which it is the intention to experiment with tamarack for ties. A place of ground is also to be planted at Medicine Hat with jack pine and tamarack for the same purpose. Over 100 miles of trees are to be planted between Winnipeg and Calgary for snow breaks, and at several stations trees are to be planted around the station grounds, and prizes are to be offered the section foremen who make the best showing.

An Uncomfortable Crown.

Describing the coronation of the new shah of Persia, a correspondent of Reynolds' Newspaper says that when he removed his astrakhan hat and the vizier placed upon his head the tiara the vizier mistook the back of the crown for the front and had to readjust it. The weight of the diadem was so great that the shah had to support it with both hands, and, judging from the expression of the royal countenance, he did not find it comfortable

Under the Cross

[Original.]

El Platt was having a hard time to make a living. He went from house to house selling any little article he could get a dealer to trust him with, and his life was passed principally in looking in at doors which were slammed in his face. One day, receiving no answer to his ring at a handsome residence, he tried the knob, opened the door and walked in. Hearing no sound, he reconnoitered as far as the second story, from a back window of which he saw a woman in the yard hanging up clothes. The premises had evidently been left in her care. Pivoting open a bureau drawer, he saw a box and, opening the box, a small fortune in jewels.

The human mind is capable of great deliberation in a very small space of time. El Platt's certainly was. He had never stolen or robbed. Indeed, he had calculated the chances of such methods and knew they were decidedly against dishonesty. The goods were usually recovered, and the thief went to state prison. Platt concluded to take the jewels, hide them, suffer the consequences of the theft and when a free man again recover the treasure and take a good long comfortable rest. He decided and acted deliberately, not on the usual impulse of a thief.

That night he took the jewels to a block on which the only building was a brick junkshop. Somebody had once taught him to find the north star by the pointer stars, so he took thirty steps from the northwest corner of the junkshop toward the north star, stopped and, with a rusty shovel he found outside the junkshop, dug a hole and buried his treasure.

He had been seen coming away with the jewels and when they were missed was arrested, identified and sent to the penitentiary.

Seven years later El Platt, just discharged, sauntered by the block where he had buried the jewels. A number of buildings had been erected; but, fortunately for El, he recognized the junkshop, though it was now used for a feed store. He looked toward the rear end of a chapel. The roof of this end was rounded up to a point, on which was a cross.

If his mind was capable of deliberation, it was also capable of calling up pictures. As he looked at the cross he saw an old woman kneeling at an altar. She was his mother. Then he saw himself toddling along by her side to church, later his confirmation. And now the treasure he had taken from another and had suffered seven long years to possess was sheltered by a sacred temple guarded by the holy emblem of the cross.

Life, like the world, is of two hemispheres. To pass from one earthly hemisphere to another may require weeks, perhaps months. A passage from one spiritual hemisphere to another may be accomplished in a fraction of a second. As El looked up at what as a child he had been taught to reverence it occurred to him that it had been placed over his treasure that no hand should profane it. For what purpose? To save his soul. By whom? She who had long passed to her heavenly home—his mother.

In a twinkling he was changed. In a twinkling that which in prison he had looked forward to longingly, counting the days between him and his possession, had become only a means by which he might be rescued from evil. Going to the front of the chapel, he found the doors open and entered. There was the stillness of a house of worship when no services were being held. Several people were kneeling before the altar. He went forward and dropped on his knees.

Long he stayed immovable, his head bowed upon his breast. He was thinking of the old woman who took him to church when he was a little boy—how, doubtless, she had waited while he was in prison for this moment, how she had interceded for him and how in the inscrutable ways of the heavenly hosts all this had been brought about.

Beside the altar was a booth shrouded by a curtain in which a priest was hearing confession. When the confessor came out El Platt entered and told the priest the story of his theft, his endurance for his final possession and where he had buried his treasure.

The next day the priest conducted the chief of police and a party of workmen to the cellar of the chapel. Taking up the cement floor, they dug in the earth, and a few feet under the surface directly beneath the cross they found a box of jewels. They were sent to their rightful owners.

A few days after their return the priest sent for El Platt and told him that a lady who had been the possessor of what he had stolen had been so pleased at getting her property again that she had sent him a present of $500. El declined to touch a cent of it. "It all belongs to me, not as a thing to be converted into money, but as a key by which my better nature has been unlocked. It was kept for me by my old mother in heaven, who put this chapel and the cross over it that I might find it to work a miracle on my return."

El Platt, though a converted man, though his conscience is far tenderer than that of millions of his brothers, remains an ex-convict, and as such his road is more thorny than before. But there is no temptation for him to attempt to ameliorate his condition by dishonesty. He is waiting for release, for a different reward, in the hereafter.

Is he not nearer than his fellows to that Christianity when to be a Christian meant martyrdom?

PLAGUE STONES.

Reminders of the Time of the Great Pestilence in England.

The story of the great plague of London is familiar to all readers of history and has been dealt with by many writers of fiction. Even the bypaths of history supply much suggestive matter, while hidden away in churchwardens' and other old accounts are many items that remind us of those days. Here, for example, are two entries from the parish accounts of St. Mary Woolnoth, London:

1552-4. Item, for setting a crosse upon one Allen's doors in the sicknesse time 3d
Item, paid for setting two red crosses upon Anthony Sound his doors 3d

The crosses were about a foot in length. The crosses served as a caution against entering such houses. In various parts of England the plague stones are silent reminders of the time when epidemics laid low so many inhabitants both in town and country.

A stone in the Derby arboretum bears the following inscription: "Headless Cross or Market Stone—This stone formed part of the ancient Cross at the upper end of Friar Gate and was used by the inhabitants of Derby as a market stone during the visitation of the plague 1603. It is thus described by Hutton in his 'History of Derby'."

"1605—Derby was again visited by the plague at the same time in which London fell under the severe calamity. The town was forsaken; the farmers declined the market place, and grass grew upon that spot which had furnished the supports of life."

"To prevent a famine the inhabitants erected at the top of Nuns' Green, one or two hundred yards from the buildings, now Friar Gate, what bore the name of Headless Cross, consisting of about four quadrangular steps five feet high. I knew it in perfection."

"Hither the market people, having their mouth primed with tobacco as a preservative, brought their provisions, stood at a distance from their property and at a greater from the town's people, with whom they were to traffic."

"The buyer was not suffered to touch any of the articles before purchase. When the agreement was finished he took the goods and deposited the money in a vessel filled with vinegar set for that purpose."

The mention of tobacco in the foregoing inscription is a curiosity, showing that the weed was then regarded as a very efficacious preventive.

Winchester suffered much from the plague in 1606. On the downs near the city are numerous curiously shaped mounds which are said to cover the pits into which the dead were cast.

When the pestilence raged a primitive kind of quarantine was practiced. The country folk supplied food, which was placed on a stone outside the city, and in exchange the citizens placed money in a bowl of water.

The old plague stone still remains, built into the base of a monument, which bears an inscription as follows:

"This monument is erected by the Society of Natives on the very spot of ground from which the markets were removed and whose basis is the very stone on which exchanges were made while the city lay under the scourge of the destroying pestilence in the year sixteen hundred sixty-six. The Society of Natives was founded on the 26th of August, 1669, for the relief of the widows and orphans of their fellow citizens who died of the great plague."

Beneath a spreading tree in the grounds of Tolly House, near Alford, Lincolnshire, is a plague stone. About 275 years ago the inhabitants of Spilsby and the surrounding villages day after day tolled up to the top of Miles Cross hill, which overlooks the wide marsh country, with Alford lying just at the foot.

At the top they left food, etc., for the poor sufferers and took in return money deposited in vessels containing water or other liquid placed on the plague stone. Then the people of Alford came up the other side of the hill for their supplies. Thus the two parties kept well apart—Chambers' Journal.

Munkacsy's Customer.

It is not generally known that the first patron of Michael Munkacsy, known to the world as the painter of "Christ Before Pilate," was an American, a gentleman from Philadelphia, who passed through Dusseldorf when Munkacsy was a young and struggling artist. The American became convinced that the young Hungarian's pictures had merit. He bought one, took it to Paris and sent it to the salon, where it was promptly placed and attracted a great deal of attention.

Ear Piercing.

Miss Skremer—Papa says if I give up my singing lessons he'll give me a pair of diamond earrings. Miss Sharpe—You've never worn earrings, have you? Miss Skremer—No; I'll have to have my ears pierced. Miss Sharpe—Oh, I see his idea! He wants to pay you back in your own coin.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Incomplete Letterist.

Hubby—Wife, dear, why are you frowning so over that letter you're writing? Wifey—Oh, I carelessly said everything I had to say before I signed it, and now I can't think of a thing for the postscript.—Boston Transcript.

The Proper Side.

Farmer—So you've had some experience, have you? Youth—Yes, sir, Farmer—Well, what side of a cow do you sit on to milk? Youth—The outside.—London Tit-Bits.

PLUG CHEWING TOBACCO

The reason "Star" is such a universal favorite is simply the extra good quality of tobacco that goes into every plug—only the choicest, ripest, sweetest, best-bodied leaf grown.

Every "Star" chew is rich in good, wholesome juice—and every "Star" plug gives twice as much chewing as any other chew made—better chewing too. No chew so choice—none so economical.

THE FEBRUARY "OHIO"

Many Notable Features in the Current Number of This Growing Magazine.

The Ohio Magazine for February contains the second article in the series demonstrating that the true inventor of the steamboat was John Fitch, an Ohio pioneer, and not Robert Fulton, whom history has hitherto credited with the invention. The author, Mira Clarke Parsons, submits some startling evidence to substantiate the original announcement of the magazine in this connection, that the claims in behalf of Fitch as the inventor would be fully vindicated. Among the illustrations is a map of Collect Pond, which a century ago was located in what is now a part of New York City and on which Fitch, in company with Fulton, Robert Livingston and John Hutchings, who made the map to commemorate the event, propelled one of his early steamboats successfully years before the name of Fulton was ever associated with steam navigation. Hutchings made affidavit that Fitch was the inventor and that he explained the workings of the steamboat to Fulton on this occasion. Another illustration is a photograph of one of Fitch's first steamboat models, discovered years after his death in an old attic in the village of Worthington, Ohio. Mrs. Parsons, the author of the present article, is a descendant of the owner of the house in which the relic was discovered. The entire article goes a long way toward establishing Fitch as the real inventor, but the magazine promises more of the same evidence in subsequent numbers. This series is creating great interest in the East, as well as in Ohio on account of the proposed celebration of Fulton's alleged original achievement with the steamboat Clarendon on the Hudson River in 1897.

The February "Ohio" is also largely a Washington number, in honor of the birthday of the Father of His Country. Hon. E. O. Randall, Secretary of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, contributes a most valuable article entitled "Washington and Ohio," showing the interest which the former manifested in the development of the Middle West and the influence he exercised over the destiny of the Buckeye State.

Nineteen Arrested.

Paris, Feb. 11.—The Church of the Holy Apostles, where the French Apostolic Catholic church was inaugurated last week, was again packed to the doors Sunday, but there was no repetition of the disgraceful scenes. Police in plain clothes were stationed at the doors, and only once was the service interrupted. This was when a young man shouted "sacrilege." He and 18 companions belonging to the society of Young Royalists were arrested.

Mardi Gras Crowds.

New Orleans, Feb. 11.—Visitors from all parts of the country arrived in New Orleans to attend the Mardi Gras celebration. So crowded is the city that many of a party of visitors due to arrive on the steamer Protus from New York will live on board the vessel during their stay here.

W. J. OLIVER.

real captain of industry." A list of his enterprises goes far toward proving his claim to this title. In fact, he has so many strings to his industrial fiddle, or, rather, so many brigades of workmen under his direction, that he might be called a major general of industry.

On the Southern railway, the Cincinnati Southern railway and the Tidewater railway this young commander has contracts for the construction of nearly 500 miles of road in the aggregate. His work on the Southern railway includes a tunnel through the famous Lookout mountain at Chattanooga, which is one of the marvels of engineering. In the heart of the mountain a great cavern was encountered, flowing from which is a stream of water sixty-five feet deep. It is necessary to build a steel bridge across the cavern river, so the Lookout mountain tunnel will be a scenic railway in itself. Mr. Oliver has just completed the practical rebuilding of the Louisville and Nashville between Knoxville and Atlanta and is said to be negotiating for more work on that railroad.

But there is still another line of construction work in which he leads. He is said to be the most successful concrete contractor in America. He has built and is building bridges, business blocks, viaducts and various other structures in re-enforced concrete, a comparatively new construction material. The re-enforced concrete method was imported a few years ago from France. Mr. Oliver is perhaps the principal concrete contractor now operating in the United States. That is his specialty. He is considered an expert in concrete work.

At Knoxville, Tenn., where he lives, Mr. Oliver is owner of a large plant that manufactures all manner of construction machinery, even to the locomotives employed. He owns nearly a million dollars' worth of such machinery, which is constantly employed on his various contracts under sub-contractors and foremen.

Worked For Himself at Twenty-three.

William J. Oliver was born in a suburb of South Bend, Ind. At the age of sixteen he got a job as clerk for a man engaged in railroad construction. He was bookkeeper for a time and then became a foreman of does not permit the club or the lodge to interfere with his spending much time at home with his wife and four children.

Not long ago at an amateur theatrical entertainment in Knoxville a local life insurance agent sang a song in which Mr. Oliver was the hero. It had to do with his building a railroad to the moon. So pleased was the contractor that he called the agent into his office the next day and took $25,000 worth of life insurance on the spot.

Frederick C. Stevens, the financial backer of Mr. Oliver in the Panama canal project, is another interesting character. He is much better known at the national capital and in New York financial circles than is Mr. Oliver. Mr. Stevens has been in politics. He served two terms in the New York state senate and tried to get into congress, but was prevented by Congressman Wadsworth, who wanted to stay there himself. Last fall Mr. Stevens, according to fairly good authority, financed the campaign of Peter A. Porter, whose emblem was a cow, and Mr. Porter defeated Mr. Wadsworth, who had been the chief upholder of the beef trust in congress. It is said to have cost Mr. Stevens $50,000 to bring about the retirement of his ancient enemy, but he could stand it, having inherited $3,000,000 from his father and multiplied it by at least three through his own operations in banking and other lines.

Senator Stevens was chairman of the famous gas commission which investigated the New York gas trust. He selected as counsel to this commission Charles E. Hughes, a lawyer not in politics. Senator Stevens also insisted upon having the life insurance companies investigated, though Governor Higgins of New York held that there was no reason for such an inquiry. Mr. Hughes was counsel in this investigation also. When Mr. Hughes became governor of New York last January he appointed Frederick C. Stevens superintendent of public works, greatly to the chagrin of James W. Wadsworth, who two years ago had caused Stevens to be retired from the state senate by a majority.

Mr. Stevens was not only unsquealed, but he was just starting out on his career apparently. As Paul Jones re-

DAUGHTER OF FORMER SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

MISS PAULINE MORTON

New York, Feb. 11—Romance, arising from the yacht races at Kiel three years ago, attended the marriage in St. Thomas church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, of Miss Pauline Morton, second daughter of Mr. Paul Morton, former secretary of the navy, to Mr. J. Hopkins Smith Jr. Mr. Smith's yacht won the Kaiser's cup, and his daring is said to have first brought Mr. Smith into favor with Miss Morton.

The wedding was one of the large-est that has taken place in New York in recent years. The bride-elect has been one of the most popular young ladies in society here and in Washington.

Mr. St. John Smith, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The maid of honor was Miss Mary Canby, of Chicago, who was Miss Morton's childhood friend, and with whom she is said to have agreed that the one who was married first should have the other as her maid of honor.

Busy Time at Coshocton.

There was a busy time in the local camp of Modern Woodmen last night. W. S. Brandriff, the district deputy, came from Newark and made the Coshocton camp a rousing speech. There were three candidates voted on for beneficial membership and two transfers from Fresno camp, A. C. Soudles and J. M. Henderson. Arrangements were made to have Mr. Brandriff here the coming week for special work and to promote the growth of the camp of Modern Woodmen in this city—Coshocton Age.

Mr. Hansberger Sinking.

J. W. Hansberger, the well known dry goods merchant, who has been ill at his home, 140 North Fifth street, from bronchial trouble for several weeks past, is now said to be rapidly sinking and in spite of the effort exerted by his physicians, Dr. Cole of Columbus and Dr. C. H. Stinson of this city, he was decidedly worse Sunday. It is now feared that he cannot recover, and his brother, J. H. Hansberger, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, arrived here at the summons of the family Saturday night.

S.S.S. PURIFIES THE BLOOD

As every part of the body is dependent on the blood for nourishment and strength, it is necessary that this vital fluid be kept free from germs, impurities and poisons. As long as it remains uncontaminated we are fortified against disease and health is assured; but any humor or impurity acts injuriously on the system and affects the general health, or culminates in some special blood disease. Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes and different skin affections show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition as a result of too much acid, or the presence of some irritating humor. Sores and Ulcers are the result of morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood; and Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood diseases that continue to grow worse as long as the impurity or poison remains in the circulation. Some persons are born with an hereditary taint in the blood and we see the effect manifested in various ways. The skin has a pallid, waxy appearance, the eyes are weak, glands in the neck often enlarged and usually the body is not fully developed or strong, because it has always been fed on weak, impure blood. In all blood troubles S. S. S. has proved itself a perfect remedy. It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, humors, waste or foreign matter, and makes this stream of life pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited blood troubles like S. S. S.; it removes every particle of taint, purifies and strengthens the weak, deteriorated blood, supplies it with the healthful properties it needs and establishes the foundation for good health. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison and all blood diseases and disorders are cured permanently by S. S. S. It is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, and is the King of all blood purifiers. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free.

OIL PRICES ADVANCED BY STANDARD

Marietta, O., Feb. 11.—The claim of the interstate commerce commission that the Standard Oil company is out to kill competition regardless of the methods employed, was evidenced here with the opening of the oil market today, when the Standard advanced, the prices for crude oil from 5 to 15 cents a barrel. The Pure Oil company, the only real competitor of the Standard in mid-continental fields, has just completed a pipe line to eastern Washington county, and was preparing to buy a large portion of the output. The Pure Oil company advanced its prices five cents a barrel, but was apparently unable to go farther. As a result many of the local producers are preparing to go over to the Standard.

Lima, O., Feb. 11.—Crude oil markets for all high grade fields was advanced today by the Standard. The eastern oils are advancing five cents a barrel, the Ohio and Indiana, two cents.

HATS MUST BEAR THE UNION LABEL.

Or Society Leaders of Chicago Will Not Wear Them—Milliners.

Union to be Formed.

Chicago, Feb. 11—Never before in the history of organized labor was a union born under such promising circumstances as those which will usher into life the Milliners' Union of Chicago Wednesday afternoon. But one of the many novel features of this organization is the statement of its backers that Mrs. Potter Palmer has given it both moral and material support and she, with a score of other society women, have agreed to demand hats that are the product of members of this union.

The milliners believe it will be but a short time when all of the best shops in Chicago, will be compelled to handle only union made hats. Then, they believe, the spectacle of members of Chicago's "409" asking to see a $2500 picture hat bearing the union label will be a common one.

At a meeting at Hull House Sunday, Miss Helen Mahon, an expert milliner, who first presented the plan to Mrs. Potter Palmer, told of the hopes and plans of the union.

As many of the 3,000 milliners and helpers in Chicago who can be accommodated in the office of Mrs. R. C. Pateron will meet there on Wednesday afternoon and learn the first principles of unionism. Officers will be elected and plans will be laid for affiliation with the American Federation of Labor.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MRS. JANE B. SNOOK.

Mrs. Jane B. Snook, one of Newark's oldest residents, died at her late residence, on South Third street, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, in the 78th year of her age. The funeral will be from Trinity Episcopal church Tuesday at 2 o'clock p. m. Friends are invited.

MRS. GEORGE CHRISSENGER.

Mrs. George Chrissinger died at her home in this city, 131 Cambria street, West Newark, Saturday, after a short illness. The remains left this city in charge of Mr. Chrissinger Sunday noon, being taken to their former home in Columbus where the funeral will take place.

Mrs. Chrissinger came to Columbus from Hagerstown, Md., and came from the Capital City to Newark when Mr. Chrissinger accepted a position in the Newark Machine works. The deceased was quite well known here, considering her short residence in the city, and her unexpected death will be quite a shock to the many friends in this city.

INFANT'S DEATH.

Anna Elizabeth, the five and one-half months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Taylor, 65 North street, died at 7:30 Sunday evening, after a short illness from brain fever. The child was a grand daughter of Mrs. Hattie Ridsley and a great grand daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Switzer. The funeral will take place at the home Tuesday afternoon at 1:30.

DORRIS RUTH KELLY.

Doris Ruth, the three months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Kelly, residing one mile north of the city, died Saturday afternoon after a short illness. The funeral was held at the home at 1:30 Monday. The Rev. Mr. Acton of this city officiated and interment took place in Cedar Hill cemetery.

GERMANY DEEMS NOTE OFFENSIVE

And Diplomatic Relations Are Strained Between Haiti and the Kaiser's Empire.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Feb. 11.—The relations between the governments of Haiti and Germany are strained owing to the refusal of the German bankers, Hermann & Company, by direction of the court at Port-Au-Prince, to return to the Haitian government large sums of money alleged to have been obtained fraudulently. Among the alleged transactions of Hermann & Company with the Haitian government was one which is said to have proved favorable to the government. This was concluded by the Haitian minister of finance,
the German legation and Hermann & Company. The German minister demands that this transaction, as well as others, be annulled, but the Haitian government, in terms that the German minister deemed offensive, refused to acquiesce. The German minister at the same time demanded the withdrawal of the objectionable phrase.
This also was refused. Fears are entertained here of grave complications ensuing.

Penrose Courtmartial.
San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 11.—The Penrose courtmartial was resumed at department headquarters. While the prosecution has already placed three or four interesting witnesses upon the stand, it is expected the testimony this week will bring out the "army side" of the case. It is very probable that Captain E. A. Macklin, who is also to be tried in connection with the Brownsville raid, will go on the stand in the Penrose case during the week.
The transcript of the proceedings is daily forwarded to war department.

Roll of $10 Bills Saves Saloonkeeper's Life—Porch Climber at Dayton Gets $2000.

Sandusky, O., Feb. 11.—Secretary
William H. Rheinhart of the National Winegrowers' association announced that an agreement had been reached with the American Winegrowers' association whereby certain features of the Fassett pure wine bill will be eliminated, and all obstacles in the way of the passage of that measure will thus be removed. The National Winegrowers' association has been fighting the Fassett bill for over a year past, on the alleged ground that if made a law
it would discriminate against many of the wineries of the middle west to such an extent as to put some classes of them out of business.

Firemen Assist Police.
Springfield, O., Feb. 11.—With 5,000 persons looking on, the police, with the aid of the fire department, raided
a saloon in East Main street and with ladders scaled the walls of a five-story building and rounded up 31 men who had escaped from the place and taken refuge on the roof. The police attempted to go up to the roof through the building, but found themselves barred by a steel trapdoor. The men on the roof refused to surrender, but when the fire department arrived with ladders the officers ascended with drawn revolvers and no further resistance was encountered. The men were charged with loitering.

To Place Unfortunate Boy.
Columbus, O., Feb. 11.—E. P. Humphreys, sheriff of Logan county, filed a petition in the circuit court praying
for a writ of mandamus compelling E.
B. Rorick, or his successor, superintendent of the Ohio institution for feeble-minded youth, to submit and receive Wilbur Reynolds at that institution. The boy is 7 years old, deaf, dumb and blind, and said to be an imbecile. The boy was at the institutes for the blind and for the deaf and dumb for trial, after which he was returned to his home at Bellefontaine, O., with recommendation that he be sent to the institution for feeble-minded.

Bride and Groom Overcome.
Ripley, O., Feb. 11.—When Frank Lewis and his bride, guests of the Hotel Reimert, retired, they blew out the gas and both were rendered unconscious by the escaping fumes. A night clerk, noting the odor of gas, broke into their room and found them in a very serious condition. Dr. R. T.
Prine was summoned and worked with the man and woman quite a while before they were out of danger.

Big Roll Saved His Life.
Cleveland, O., Feb. 11.—A big bag
of $10 bills saved the life of John C.
Dare, a saloonkeeper. John L. New-comb, employed by Dare, shot at him,
but the bullet struck Dare's wallet and the fat bunch of bills stopped the missile. Newcomb quarreled with Dare over money matters. "Hope these bills are still good," was all the comment Dare would make concerning the shooting.

Porchclimber's Haul.
Dayton, O., Feb. 11.—While the family of E. L. Rowe, a prominent and wealthy attorney, was dining, a porch climber ransacked the bedroom of Mrs. Rowe and got diamond jewelry valued at $2,000. Eleven pieces in all were taken, including a gold watch studded with diamonds.

W. A. Erman & Son Say They Have
at Last Discovered a Positive Cure for Indigestion.

"For years," said a member of the above drug firm, "we have been waiting for some one to discover a remedy that really will cure dyspepsia."
"We recently learned that a new remedy, Pepsikola Tablets, had been placed on the market, and on investigation we found that at last there is a remedy that surely will cure."
"We laid in a big supply because we knew that as soon as the people began to know about this remarkable remedy there would be a big demand for it, and it is selling beyond our expectations."

It is not often a druggist sells a new remedy on a positive guarantee,
but unless cured of nervousness, dizziness,
spells, sour stomach, coated tongue, palpitation and other symptoms of dyspepsia, Erman & Son will hand back your money cheerfully and without argument.

No one should hesitate on trying 25 cent box of Pepsikola Tablets, as they will not cost you a penny should they fail to relieve and cure the very worst case of indigestion and dyspepsia.

there will be any attempt to lynch the

ASSOCIATION OF PAST OFFICERS

Of Knights of Pythias of Muskingum, Coshocton, Licking and Guernsey Counties Formed.

At a meeting at the Hotel Rogge, Zanesville, a Past Chancellors' Association of the Knights of Pythias was formally organized. The following officers were chosen at the business meeting: President, Will H. Mahner of Coshocton; secretary, Dr. S. E. Lovell of Zanesville; treasurer, S. H.
Flemm of Zanesville; sergeant-at-arms, C. H. Hanks of Adamsville.
The following persons were chosen as members of the executive committee:
J. W. Hoffman of Cambridge; C. W.
Highfield of Zanesville; J. H. Lorenz of Coshocton; B. F. McDonald of Newark.

Membership in the association is confined to Past Chancellors of the Pythian lodges of Coshocton, Licking, Muskingum and Guernsey counties.
The object of the association is to more closely unite the Past Chancellors and to advance the cause of Pythianism in general. The promoters of the association were S. E.
Lovell, D. H. Crawford, W. R. Gallagher and S. H. Flemm of Zanesville; J. W. Hoffman of Cambridge, and Will H. Mahner of Coshocton.
The association is but in its infancy,
yet its success seems to be assured.

The next meeting of the association is to be held the first Thursday in May in Cambridge. Following the business meeting a sumptuous banquet of seven courses was served.

VICE PRESIDENT OF VENEZUELA LOYAL TO CASTRO.

Caracas, Venezuela, Feb. 11.—The country has come to feel sorry for the absence of President Castro from active participation in affairs.

General Gomez is confident. It is said that if Castro dies and he assumes the presidency, there will be no political disturbance. He has the support of all the presidents of the various states of the republic,
with the possible exception of Alcantara, who, it is alleged, cannot count
upon the support of the state of Aragua, of which he is president. As to the Venezuelans abroad who are antagonistic to General Castro, Gomez has, it is said, assurances that they will support him, because their enmity is concerned solely with the personality of Castro.

HORSE KILLED BUGGY WRECKED

TWO GLASSBLOWERS OF UTICA
CAME TO NEWARK SATUR-DAY AFTERNOON.

And After Filling Up on Whisky Allowed the Horse to Break Loose and be Killed.

The finding of a dead horse on the
B. & O. and Pennsylvania tracks near the Union street crossing, and a badly damaged buggy, containing three slouch, felt hats, at an early hour on Sunday morning, created considerable excitement among the residents in the vicinity of West Newark.

Late Sunday it became known that the horse and buggy were the property of the Utica livery firm of Shaffer & Drury and had been secured by two glassworkers of Utica, whose names could not be learned. The men left Utica Saturday afternoon with the intention of coming to Newark to join a lodge. On arriving here at 3 o'clock they stabled the rig
at the Whitehead livery barn and at about 9 o'clock in the evening called for it again. This was the last seen of them until Sunday morning, when one of them, covered with mud, called at the Whitehead stables and made inquiries concerning the rig. He was not much disposed to talk of the affair, but stated that he did not know how the accident occurred.

It is said that the men had been seen when they were drinking hard,
and they are thought to have driven up Wilson street to the canal where they turned to the left, following the road that goes under the railroad bridge toward the south. Shortly before reaching the embankment and the buggy was overturned and smashed, breaking loose from the horse. The animal then started west on the railroad track, after reaching the top of the embankment, and had succeeded in getting about half way across the bridge when a west bound train struck it. The horse was instantly killed and it seems miraculous that the train was not wrecked. The body of the animal was carried several feet from where it had been struck.

There seems to be no explanation of the presence of the hats in the buggy, as one of the men is said to have worn a stiff black hat when seen in the afternoon, and had on a similar one Sunday morning. In the buggy was also found a bottle of whisky.

The blanket and harness were turned over to the police department and later were claimed by the Utica liveryman. He will probably take some action to recover the loss.

Tortured Day and Night

RHEUMATISM CRAZES THE MIND URIC-O, An Internal Treatment for the Blood—It is Widely Recommended as a Cure.

Every sufferer from rheumatism is familiar with the sleepless nights and nerve binding, muscle twisting pains which they have to endure. Vapor baths have been used, Mt. Clemens has been visited, and hundreds of dollars spent in search of relief. There is but little use of other experience, as relief and a permanent cure for all forms of rheumatism can only be found in Smith's Specific Uric-O. It matters little how long one has suffered from the trouble, or how intense the suffering, Uric-O will cure
you. It cures by its direct action upon the blood, muscles and kidneys, neutralizing poisonous uric and rheumatic acids.
Druggists and physicians everywhere are recommending Uric-O, because they know that at last there has been a remedy prepared which actually cures the disease. Uric-O is manufactured by the Smith Drug Company, Syracuse, N. Y.
It is supplied to users in large size bottles, which sell for $1.00. Your druggist can supply you with the remedy, or you can order direct. Samples and circulars will be forwarded free to all who apply.
Use Uric-O for rheumatism only. It may possibly save your life.
Uric-O is sold and recommended in Newark by Frank D. Hall, North Side Square.

NOTICE

Depositors and creditors of The Newark Savings Bank company will take notice that in order to share in any judgment that may be recovered
against the stockholders of said bank,
it will be necessary for you to file an answer and cross-petition and become a party to the suit. A legal notice to this effect was published and ordered by the court last July, granting to January 1st, 1907, the time in which to file claims or be barred from any participation.

In application of undersigned this time has been extended to April 1st,

GRANVILLE NEWS

Oren Frenier, Aged Resident of the Village Died Sunday Noon—Wm.
Cluggish Very Ill.

Granville, Ohio, Feb. 11.—Mr. Oren Frenier, one of the oldest and best known residents of this place, died at his home on College street Sunday about noon, after an illness of some time with heart trouble. The deceased was aged 80 years, and for a number of years worked at the blacksmith trade. For some time he has been in poor health, and the once strong man has been rapidly failing. Mr. Frenier had been twice married. He was the father of two children by his first wife,
a son and a daughter, and one son, Bert, by his second wife. The funeral will be held from the home on College street on Tuesday and the interment will be made in Maple Grove cemetery.

William Cluggish, foreman of the T.
and O. C. R. R. steam shovel crew, who has been at Bucyrus repairing
the shovel for some time, had a hemorrhage of the stomach on Saturday, and his condition became very serious. He was brought to Granville Saturday night on the T. and O. C.
train and carried to his home on a stretcher. Dr. Cook is the attending physician.

Mrs. Willis Chamberlin entertained most delightfully on Saturday afternoon the ladies of the Faculty Sewing circle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Moore of Greenfield, O., who has been visiting relatives north of the village for the past week, returned home on Saturday.

Miss Mary Ferguson, assistant principal of Crotan High schools, spent Friday night and Saturday at her home in Granville.

Mrs. James Grady of Bucyrus, O., who has been here for a few days,
returned home Monday morning, having had a very pleasant visit.

Marcus Rosenihal and Harry Leach of Mt. Vernon visited friends in the village Saturday.

Miss Grace Hill of Mansfield has returned home after a short visit here with friends.

A number of out of town people attended the Denison-O. S. U. game in Cleveland Hall Saturday evening.

Mrs. Harriet Miller of Defiance, O., is visiting in the village for a few days.

The members of the Kappa Phi Sorarity entertained the members of the Chi Psi Delta Sorority Friday afternoon.

Henry Thomas, a prominent business man of Mansfield, O. was here
on business Saturday.

BOWSER LEAVES HOME

It Is All on Account of an Elixir Given Him by Plumber.

IT HAS A STRANGE EFFECT.

He Treats All the Policemen on the Block When They Call to Stop Noise. No Row Over Return, Mrs. B. Promises.

[Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.] We had just finished dinner and returned to the sitting room the other evening when the cook came upstairs and said there was a boy at the basement door with a gallon jug. Mr. Bowser promptly went down to see about it and a few minutes later announced to me:

"It is a little something the plumber sent me over. Ever since I called him a robber last year he has done everything to deserve my good opinion."

"But what is it?" I asked. "You know he has a farm out in the country. His brother-in-law runs it. They dig all kinds of roots and gather all kinds of barks and make what they call an elixir of life. It is a jug of the last brew they have sent me over. Come on down and have a taste."

"I am not in need of a tonic," I said. "You may not think you are, but one can't tell about those things. I've had a sort of rash for the last week, and this is just the stuff to take it away."

"I shouldn't take anything of the kind unless ordered by the doctor. It's funny that you haven't said anything about your rash up to just now."

Goes Right to the Spot.

"Mrs. Bowser, don't use that tone in speaking to me," he said as he flushed up. "In the first place, I guess I can have a rash without shouting the fact all over town, and, in the next, I was waiting to see whether it would grow worse or go away. I should have gone to the drug store this evening if this elixir hadn't come. Ah, it's good stuff! It goes right to the spot. The plumber began using this twenty years ago when everybody predicted that he wouldn't live a year. Inside of a year he had gained thirty pounds and his yells could be heard a mile. He has a list of over thirty people that it has right. I shall never call him a robber again. I might have been in my grave in a day or two more but for him.

"He didn't say the elixir was good for rheumatism, but I'm going to try it. You never can tell what an elixir will do until you've emptied the jug. "Have tried it and feel much better. Danced a jig when I came back up stairs. Cat looked at me in astonishment, but what's a cat? Did cat got to do with it? Cook has just gone to bed, and I'm all alone down here. While I pity the poor woman and while she looked at the jug appealingly, I'm not going to peddle the elixir around. Charity begins at home.

"Just had a fit of laughing. Can't say what it was about, but the man who wants to leave this rosy old world is a fool. I just feel friendly toward every living thing.

"I suppose that after they have boiled the barks and roots down they put in hard cider, but I don't know or care. All I know is that it has cured my rheumatism in about fifteen minutes. Never saw anything act like it before.

Cures Many Things. "Plumber didn't say the elixir would cure the kidney complaint, but I'm going to try it. Never be surprised at anything an elixir does. Cat looks at me reproachfully, but—

"Have taken another dose. Warm glow. Heart large and liberal. If an old tramp should call now I'd give him my shoes. Have told the cat I think just as much of him as if he was a baby, but he seems to doubt the statement. Got up to go over and stroke his back, but the floor rose up under me and I had to sit down again. That may be the elixir's way of curing kidney complaint, and I ain't saying a word.

"Just got through singing 'Old Black Joe.' Mrs. Bowser ought to have been here and felt the house tremble. Some one opened the door, and I thought it was her, but it was a policeman. Said he'd give me the collar if I didn't hush. Hushed and gave him a dose of the elixir to cure his cold feet. We winked at each other and laughed. He said it was the best ever and that I might sing the roof off the house if I wanted to.

"Been playing the strong man with the chairs. The elixir gives a man a heap of muscle.

Treated the Policemen.

"Went out to the gate bareheaded to look for Mrs. Bowser. Couldn't see her anywhere, and I sang 'The Old Oaken Bucket.' Two policemen came along and told me to shut up or they would have me in the jug. Speaking of jug reminded me, and I brought out the elixir. When they had drunk they patted me on the back.

"I can stand in with elixir, and I stand in with the police, and so who cares for who cares?

"Don't remember whether the plumber said the elixir was good for liver complaint or not, but I have just tried it. Always give one elixir a fair show and it will give you one.

"Have just found myself weeping. Can't tell what for. Nobody dead and no mortgage on the house, but I wept. Cat didn't seem to be any more astonished than when I laughed. Is there one cat or two or three? Is it the room whirling around or me? It may be that I ought to have taken more elixir, but—

Mr. Bowser's diary ended there. The cat was in the house when I reached home, but he was not to be found. The jug was there, but there was only about a pint of the elixir left. Mr. Bowser had taken his overcoat and hat and gone. It is twenty-four hours since he disappeared, and still no word. Any one observing a short, fat man sitting in a snowdrift or a doorway and weeping will please speak kindly to him and lead him home. Say to him on the way that there will be no row raised over his return. There is some elixir left, and he can go right on dosing himself for consumption and appendicitis.

COSTUME OF SILK OR LIGHT-WEIGHT CLOTH.

The sketch depicts a pretty model which would be suitable for a variety of materials. The bodice was cut with a rounded yoke upper part, the sections of which were joined together in the middle of the front and back by straps of velvet. Flat silk-covered buttons were also used as trimming the sleeves being open caps of the material, under which were undersleeves of lace. The inner yoke was of lace and the skirt was made with a plaited panel down the middle of the front at each side and in the back.

Minor Official's Statement to the New York Comptroller.

FIVE MILLIONS IN THE LOT

Official Investigation Into the Disposition of the Old Issue of Tax Stamps Alleged to Have Developed a Conflict of Testimony — Comptroller's Report.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 11.—The results of an inquiry which he has made into the condition of the stock transfer tax bureau of the comptroller's office, with reference to the handling and disposition of seven million dollars' worth of the stamps issued by that department for use in the transfer of stocks under the act of 1905, has been made public by Comptroller Glynn.

According to the comptroller over five million dollars' worth of the stamps have been destroyed, either in process of manufacture or by actual burning, without adequate record or authorization, in the two years since the act was passed, and there is only the personal word of a single clerk, salaried at $2,500 and not under bond, to certify the fact that they were destroyed at all.

According to Comptroller Glynn, the entire business of printing and caring for the stock transfer tax stamps was in the hands of Charles M. Watkins of Penn Yan, chief clerk in the stock transfer bureau, who was superseded early in January by an appointee of Mr. Glynn's, and it was in the process of checking up the stamps on hand that the alleged state of affairs was discovered.

The stamps were printed by Quayle & Son of this city. The plates were in the custody of the comptroller's representative, and each day or week were delivered to Quayle. The paper first used was of an ordinary commercial sort, which Comptroller Glynn said was stored in the Quayle shop under an ordinary lock in an ordinary room, and while the sheets were counted out before printing, there was no safeguard to prevent their being abstracted. Moreover, the comptroller declares the count of sheets does not tally, the explanation being that some of it was used for other purposes. The first issue of stamps was found to be susceptible of counterfeiting and the removal of cancellation marks, and in May or June of last year the printing of these were stopped and a new issue begun on patent paper.

A statement was made to him by Watkins, the comptroller said, adding: "He says that early in October he took all that remained of the old issue of stamps from the vaults down to Quayle's shop in Green street, boxed them up, and they remained there without guard or watchman at least one night. There is a conflict of testimony on this point. The safe deposit people say they were not returned until Dec. 26."

MRS. DICKINSON

Wife of A. C. Dickinson Fell on Ice Pavement at New Castle, Breaking Her Leg and Arm.

The New Castle, Pa., Herald contains the following relative to Mrs. Dickinson, wife of Mr. Addison C. Dickinson, formerly proprietor of the American Tribune of this city, who was severely injured several days ago by falling on the icy pavement at New Castle:

"An accident of a deplorable nature was suffered by Mrs. Addison C. Dickinson, of East Lincoln avenue, as she was descending Shaw street. She slipped upon the icy pavement and fractured her left arm just above the wrist and her left leg, just above the ankle. The latter was a compound fracture and was extremely serious.

"Mrs. Dickinson was accompanying a party of friends when the accident occurred and was hurried to her home in a carriage. She will be confined to her home for many weeks as a consequence and the nature of her injuries makes them intensely painful."

WHEN DELMAS WON

How the California Attorney Upset One Jury.

HIS LOGIC BIT LIKE VITRIOL.

Winifred Black Tells How Harry Thaw's Chief Counsel Won in a Celebrated Will Case—Dramatic Incident at Trial's End.

Delphin M. Delmas of California, chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw, is the man upon whom it is said Thaw depends most to save his life. He looks almost as much like the great Napoleon today as he did some fifteen crowded years ago, the first time I saw him in California, writes Winifred Black in the New York American.

The first time I ever looked at Mr. Delmas I saw him over the heads of a courtroom full of women and trial hangers on. He was the attorney on one side of one of the most celebrated will cases ever tried in a state famous for its will cases.

A rich man had died somewhere up in the north of the state and, dying, left behind him some sacks of jingling gold somewhere outside of the lid of his coffin. A woman, the wife of his dead brother, arose and claimed half of the estate on the ground that the dead millionaire was the father of her child and that he had made a will in favor of that child and of her.

The widow of the millionaire denied the claim of the woman who boldly announced herself to be the dead man's light of love, and the two women went to court and tore each other to pieces in the full gaze of the curious and not always applauding public.

Both women were handsome, both were clever and both were at that interesting age when the past casts a glamour of romance over the plainest face and where the future is not yet close enough to be terrifying. The widow of the dead millionaire was tall, slender, pale, calm and Madonna faced. The light of love was tall, buxom, rosy and had a pair of eyes full of the joy of living. All San Francisco fought at the door of that courtroom for entrance to the trial.

The light of love was represented by a man named Johnson. He was a lawyer, known to the whole coast as a man of amazing eloquence. Mr. Delmas represented the Madonna faced widow.

The case dragged and dragged. One witness contradicted today what another had said yesterday. And tomorrow came three who told yet a different story. There were writing experts and medical experts and legal experts on the stand, besides a perfect cloud of plain people.

At last the whole tedious business drew near to the close and Mr. Johnson made the address for his client. He made a magnificent speech, reasonable and well considered, but at the end of it he caught up the child who was one of the contestants in the case and held him up to the jury, tangled curls, blue eyes, frightened, flushed face and all.

"And if you gentlemen do not give my client justice," said Mr. Johnson, "I call here and now upon the God of the widow and the fatherless to give this innocent child his rights in the estate of his acknowledged father."

Some of the jurors cried, some of them sneered and one of them laughed aloud, but every one of them was moved out of the lethargy into which the long weeks of tiresome litigation had thrown them.

Mr. Delmas rose, on the heels of a fit of hysteria which threatened to convulse the entire courtroom. He spoke as calmly as if he were ordering his breakfast. His straight featured and handsome face was as bereaved of any trace of emotion as is the carved face of an angel on an ancient and forgotten tomb. The stinging logic of his argument bit like vitriol into every mind that marked and understood him. He tore the evidence with which Mr. Johnson had fortified his client's case to pieces, bit by bit, shred by shred and atom by atom. He did it with a cold irony that was somehow overwhelmingly convincing.

"This won't do," whispered a listening lawyer to me. "This will never do. Delmas' logic is all right, but Johnson has got the jury into hysterics. He'll get the case unless some one throws a bucket of cold water into that jury box before the judge delivers his charge."

When the evidence had been absolutely swept out of the case as a floor is swept before the energetic broom of a conscientious housemaid, Mr. Delmas turned suddenly to the convicted but unwon jury. He leaned forward and fixed the attorney for the other side with his piercing black eyes and said, with a sudden access of fury:

"To what God does my learned friend, Mr. Johnson, appeal for justice in this case? To the God who thundered from Sinai, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery'?"

The jury caught its breath. The bucket of cold water had done its work, and Mr. Delmas' client walked out of the courtroom a triumphant woman. I wonder if in the handling of that case there was anything like a prophesy as to what Delmas, the man from California, will do when he rises to snatch Harry Thaw from the electric chair.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE ORPHIUM.

The show that opened at the Orphium this afternoon was all that could be asked for and Manager Paul is lucky in securing such a good bill following the big show that was at the Orphium last week, but from all indications the show this week will surpass any that has been at the Orphium. Plenty of singing, some dancing and the best of comedy with the illustrated song and motion pictures could well be termed features in themselves.

$5000 CHALLENGE.

This is the challenge which Don and Dot Ford the king and queen of handcliffs, who appear at the Orphium theater next week offer to any expert in the world. The only conditions are that the expert must escape from the same positions as Don Ford and from a number of irons as quickly as does Miss Ford, who is the only lady expert in the world.

The Fords' work created such a sensation in Richmond, Ind., that fully 1000 people were turned away night after night, even after all the aisles, orchestra pit and stage were packed.

So far Houdini, Blindamom, and Cunniff have refused the Fords' challenge any they are awaiting any others that wish to try.

RAILROAD JACK FEB. 3.

The newspapers and politicians may claim and proclaim it their hearts' content about the good times that are and those to be. But the surest test of prosperity comes with the success attendant upon the theatrical world. For many years the anticipated results have never been more happily realized than they are just at this time. Enterprising managers with their usual foresight prepared themselves for present conditions. Never perhaps, in the history of the theater were there so many first class companies on the road. In some instances the moral tone of the plays is not correct, but there are many, very many good, clean wholesome plays that not only amuse, interest and instruct, but assist in making the world permanently better. The coming attraction, "Railroad Jack," which will appear at the Auditorium Wednesday matinee and night, has proven to be one of the most successful of the melodramas that have appealed for popular favor during the past season.

drawn back from the grave. You won't have any, eh? Well, if you like to have your dry bones rattle as you walk about, that's your affair. I think I'll take another small sip."

Just then the front bell upstairs rang, and I went up to find Mrs. Brown's boy with a message from his mother, who was ill. She wanted me to come over for awhile, and I left Mr. Bowser seated in his chair and reading the paper. It was three hours before I returned, and he was not to be found in the house. On the table, however, he had left a memorandum or diary of the events of those hours, and I here give it verbatim:

"Plumber sends me a gallon of elixir to cure my rash and brace me up. Spoke of my rash to Mrs. Bowser, and she answered sarcastically.

Pleasant to the Taste.

"Had two doses of the elixir before she was unexpectedly called out. Rather pleasant to the taste.

"Desiring to get rid of this rash as soon as possible, I guess I'll take another.

"Have taken it and feel better—much better. No danger now of the rash striking in. In fact, I can feel it striking out.

"Much obliged to the plumber. If I have any busted water pipes this winter, I shall call him in.

"The elixir was just what I needed. When I came home this evening, I was taking a gloomy view of life. Now I'm singing as I write this.

"No directions on the jug, but I presume the elixir is to be taken whenever a feller feels like it. That's why it's called elixir.

"That's why I've just gone down and taken another dose. It seems to fill a long felt want. No more gloomy views of life for me. I found myself laughing as I came upstairs. Can't say what I was laughing about, but this is a good old world, and I'd like to live a thousand years.

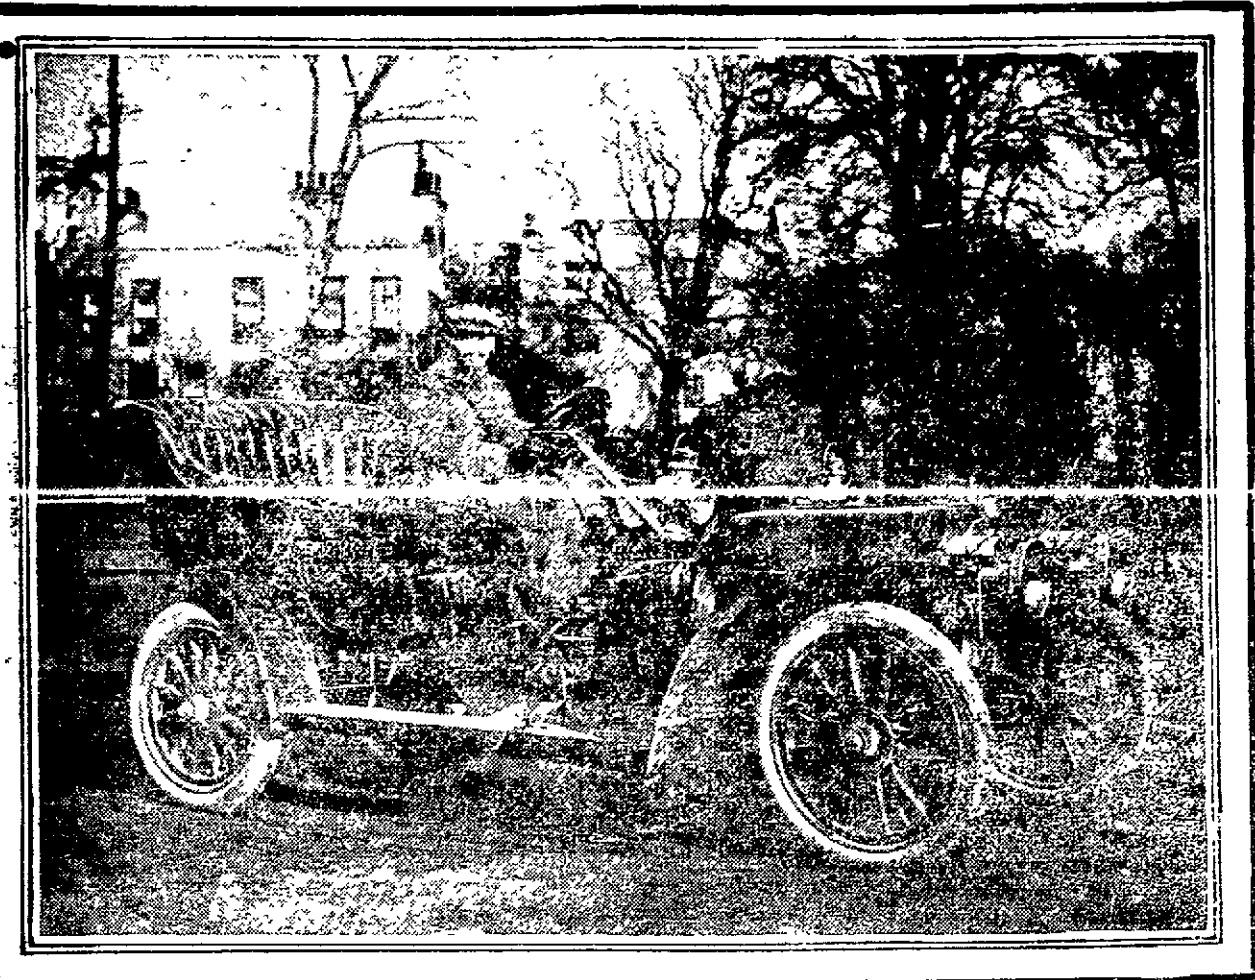

"The cat and I sit opposite each other. He seems to distrust my motives, but, bless your soul, I wouldn't hurt a cat. Cats have got a right to live and be happy.

"Have just looked for the rash and found it all gone.

Plumber Was Right.

CO. G. TEAM LOST TO UTICA FIVE

SOLDIERS WERE SLOW STARTING AND COULDN'T THROW BASKETS FROM FOULS.

Newark is Improving in Team Work and Players are Showing Good Form.

In one of the prettiest games ever seen on the armory floor, the last Utica bunch defeated the Co. G. team at the East Main street armory Saturday night by the close score of 11 to 9. Utica started right out by making two baskets and it looked as though the game would be all Utica.

Newark came out of their trance, was anybody's game until the whistle saw anybody's game until the whistle sounded at the finish. Both teams played a rough game and many fouls were called, especially on the Utica team. Had Newark a good foul thrower, they would have won in a walk.

For Utica, Sperry and Salmon played a fine game, scoring 7 out of their 11 points, while Smart and Rider played great ball for the soldier boys. Smart was handicapped by a stiff ankle, but scored 5 points for Newark.

The local team, which was organized from all new material, is showing great form and their team work is improving marvelously.

THE JUVENILE

Is the Name of a New Monthly Which is Being Published by Mr. M. R. Scott.

"The Juvenile" is the name of a new monthly published by Mr. M. R. Scott, Number 1, Volume 1, of which has just made its appearance on the desk of the Advocate exchange editor.

The magazine contains 16 pages of interesting reading, and as the name indicates is devoted to the interests of the young boys and girls, with many suggestions for the improvement of the present conditions of these future citizens, from an industrial, educational and moral standpoint.

There are a number of articles reproduced from the pens of well known authors, publicists, philanthropists and teachers, which give practical advice on the necessity of inculcating principles of right thinking in the minds of the young, which will bear fruit in the growing up of useful and honored men and women.

A selected poem on Abraham Lincoln accompanying a full page photograph cut of the great emancipator, suggestions from the editor upon timely topics, and other interesting reading makes the magazine a welcome addition to literature of this class.

The Juvenile is on sale at all news stands at 10 cents per copy, or $1 per year.

THOMAS EDISON SIXTY TODAY WILL QUIT WORK

Newark, N. J., Feb. 11.—Thomas Alvin Edison, the inventor, says when a man gets to be 60, it is time to knock off work and play a while. Edison is 60 today, and his play time begins.

"For 45 years I have been experimenting with electricity," said Edison today. "But all these years I have been turning these experiments to commercial value so fast that I have not had a chance to play with electricity for the fun of it, and to see how much I can find out about it."

"From tomorrow on, I am going to give up the commercial part of the work, and devote myself to laboratory experiments as a scientist. That will be a pleasure I have long been promising myself."

"During all the years that I have been putting my discoveries to commercial use I have run across phenomena that invited attention, but I did not have time to turn aside from the work at hand. I have several notebooks filled with these clues to possible new discoveries. Now I am going back over these notes and work out at my leisure the experiments they suggest."

FAUCETT ARRESTED AFTER TWO YEARS

FOR SHOOTING AT WILLIAM SCHALLER WITH INTENT TO KILL.

He Pleaded Not Guilty and Was Bound Over to Court in the Sum of $1,000.

After nearly two years of waiting the police department promises to clear up the mystery which surrounded the shooting of William Schaller, which occurred on Sunday night, February 19, 1905. An arrest made Saturday may clear up the case.

Frank Faucett, manager of the hotel operated by his father and mother in West Newark, was under bond charged with the shooting. His arrest occurred Saturday at the police station.

Faucett strolled into the station during the afternoon on a friendly visit, inspecting the building and was called into Chief Sheridan's office. There he was placed under arrest and was sent to the city prison in the patrol wagon. Later, an affidavit was filed against Faucett, charging him with shooting with intent to kill.

The case will be remembered by Advocate readers. Briefly the facts of the case are about as follows: Mr. Schaller, who lives near Sixth and Jefferson streets, had gone to the canal for a bucket of water. He was in the act of dipping the water from hole in the ice when some one threw a piece of ice at him.

Mr. Schaller looked up and saw three men approaching him and a few remarks followed which resulted in Mr. Schaller returning the ice which was thrown at him. He was dared into the middle of the road, and called the bluff of the rowdies.

An encounter followed and as Mr. Schaller was getting the best of his opponent, the latter pulled a revolver and fired three times. One bullet entered Mr. Schaller's shoulder, breaking his collar bone while another took effect in his head near the left eye. This bullet inflicted only a flesh wound, however.

The wounded man still struggled with the would be murderer, however, and succeeded in wresting the gun from him. This was turned over to Officer McClum. The police worked on the case for some time and in fact have never ceased their efforts to get a clue to the attempted murder.

Their efforts were rewarded a few days ago when information came to Chief Sheridan which led to Faucett being suspected. Further evidence was secured by the chief and his man came into his clutches Saturday.

In police court Monday morning Faucett pleaded not guilty, waived examination and was bound over to the Common Pleas court under a bond of $1,000.

In speaking to the Advocate of his arrest Mr. Faucett stated that he was innocent of the charge and would have no trouble in clearing his name. He claims that he was confined to his home with rheumatism at the time of the shooting.

His parents are in Knox county, visiting relatives and friends, and Faucett experienced some little difficulty in furnishing the necessary bond. Faucett and his father formerly operated a saloon in West Main street, near Union.

New York Couple Agree to Separate For a Year.

When Edward Lawson of New York and his wife entered the office of Justice of the Peace G. P. Seymour of Hoboken, N. J., the other day Lawson said to the justice:

"I guess you don't remember me?" The justice said he did not. His visitor told him name and said that on Jan. 29, 1906, the justice had married him. Seymour turned to his records and found the statement true, says a special dispatch from Hoboken, N. J., to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"It has been an eventful year," said Lawson, "and has resulted in a decision by my wife and myself to separate. We do not mean an absolute separation, but one that, if we both so desire it, will terminate at the expiration of one year."

"That is what we want, ain't it?" asked Lawson, turning to his wife, a woman of twenty-two years.

"Is it what you want?" she timidly inquired, tears coming to her eyes as she struggled to suppress sobs.

"I don't see what else we can do," said Lawson. "You know we have tried living together one year and that the greater portion of the time has been passed in disagreements and quarrels. As we decided this morning, if at the end of the year we find that we will live more happily together than apart, we can do so."

"Just as you say, Edward," replied the wife.

"Judge," said Lawson, turning to him, "we came here for separation papers because you married us. While I am not rich, I will give my wife all of the furniture in the flat. I will pay the rent for it and allow her and her sister $10 a week. I will each month send my wife's mother $25. She lives in England."

Justice Seymour drew up the papers as requested. They were signed and witnessed.

"Goodby, Mary," said Lawson, with a show of affection. "Our parting may be only for one year."

Hastily kissing her, he left the office, followed soon by his wife.

Employees of Southern Railway to Contribute From Their Wages.

A monument to the late Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway, who lost his life in a rear end collision on his own road last November, is planned by the employees of the road to be put in the plaza in front of the terminal station in Atlanta, Ga., says the New York Times. A general committee has been formed representing employees of every department of the railroad, and a plan has been formulated by which it will be possible for every Southern railway man from the lamp lighters to the officers of the road to make contributions to the fund in proportion to their pay.

Circulars have been sent to every employee inviting him to contribute out of his wages earned in the month of March a sliding percentage ranging from a cent on the dollar for employees receiving from a dollar to $100 a month up to 5 cents on the dollar for employees receiving between $400 and $500 a month. All employees and officers receiving over $500 a month are to contribute in the same proportion.

A Pointer For Peace-makers.

King Edward is again in Paris, and this time accompanied by Queen Alexandra. Every visit counts. The rocking chair and cigar diplomacy grows. The old style diplomacy made no progress. England sent her picked men to Paris, and France her picked men to London, and they entertained lavishly and made themselves as agreeable as possible. Still the two countries remained cold toward each other. The Parisian wits exercised themselves on Johnny Bull, and the London leader writers made fun of the Frenchmen. At last King Edward took a hand in the game, changed its character to that of civility and neighborliness, and to day France and England are the best of friends. Maybe there is a pointer here, says the Washington Star, for those red eyed Americans who just now are fighting Japan with their pens and tongues and doing their best, or worst, to bring on real war.

"Salome Veils" to Prevent Cold.

"These breezy days, when all the fair ones and some not so fair must have veils to protect their complexions, have inspired a Boston milliner to a showing of the law of contraries, says the New York Press. You know those floating lace veils which have come into vogue? Well, she calls them Salome veils. Oh, the subtlety of the Boston literary mind! Think of the lavalike nature that Salome possessed and then ask if that fiery temperament would not be a shield against cold. At any rate, Hub d'ouvers and debutantes alike are buying the scarfs named for the damsel whom Strauss has set to cacophony. The Salome veil is "it," and the milliner doesn't seem afraid that she will be arrested for introducing it.

Use of Goggles to Engineers.

The operating officials of the Erie Railroad are encouraging the engineers of the road to wear goggles as a protection to their eyes while on duty, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Formerly it was regarded as a mark of weakness to wear goggles, and many engineers were afraid to do so for fear of re-examination and dismissal. Railroad officials say that they now realize that protection to the eyes is an important matter to engine crews and that if generally indulged in it would result in the retention of many good men much longer in service.

Have One Doctor

No sense in running from one doctor to another. Select the best one, then stand by him. Do not delay, but consult him in time when you are sick. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds. Then use it or not, just as he says. We have no secrets! We publish the formulae of all our preparations. J. C. Patrol Operators Named

The police operators have been named. Applications by the dozens and conjectures by the hundreds have been made concerning the appointment of the three young women who are to go on duty at the police patrol station. It was announced Saturday that the three operators will be Miss Ethel Buckingham, Miss Stella Kennedy and Miss Katharine Buchanan. These young ladies will go on duty at the patrol station as soon as the plant is installed and the patrol boxes connected up.

Each operator will work eight hours, thus getting 16 hours off duty. Blanks have been printed for receiving the reports of the officers on their beats and these will be in charge of the operators. Each report made to the station will be recorded on these blanks.

VACATION TIME
By Byron Williams.

"Sister" and I were just jolly chums
Up in Wisconsin, at "Meadow Farm."
She was my "partner," a slender reed:
I was her "brother" to shield from harm.

"Sister" and I Sapphires aglow! And her lips were red!
Laugh like the ripple upon the ford!
Hands that were warm when by rough paths sped.

"Sister" and I
"Sister" and I are in town again—
Here, I am told, she is "Miss Frazore!"
"Sir, there's a difference 'twixt this and that."
Now we're in town and vacation's o'er!
"Sister" no more!

"Sister" and I
Ah, those happy days,
When we were "chums where the
zephyr's charm
Filled our two hearts with a strange new joy.
Up in Wisconsin at "Meadow Farm"—

Of course the corner on eggs failed.
If corners were necessary on eggs the

It is Free
—The New Liquezone—to All Who Will Ask.

What more can we do to prove the value of Liquezone than to buy you a bottle to try? We don't want to argue with you; we want the product itself to convince you. So we ask you to do as millions have done—try it at our expense. Its results, at the least, will mean much to you.

For five years Liquezone has done
for countless people just what you need, perhaps. Your own neighbors and friends are among them. Please don't think that what the product has done
so often cannot be done for you.

What Liquezone Is.

Liquezone is a tonic-germicide, the virtues of which are derived solely from oxide gases. No alcohol, no narcotic, nothing but gas enters into it.
The process of making requires large apparatus, and consumes 14 days time. The object is to so combine the gases with a liquid as to carry their virtues into the system.

The result is a germicide so certain that we publish with every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that Liquezone cannot kill. It destroys them because germs are of vegetable origin. But to the body Liquezone is exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying.

That is its main distinction. Common germicides are poisons when taken internally. They are impossible, for they destroy the tissues as well as the germs. That is why medicine proves so helpless in dealing with germ diseases. Liquezone, on the contrary, acts as a remarkable tonic.

We Paid $100,000.

For the rights to Liquezone, after thousands of tests had been made with it, after its power had been demonstrated for more than two years in the most difficult germ diseases. Conditions which had resisted medicine for years yielded at once to it, a d d diseases considered incurable were cured.
That was five years ago. Since then millions of people in every part of the world have shared in the benefits of this invention. Nearly every hamlet, every neighborhood, has living examples of its power. Now we ask you to let it do for you what it did for them.

Germ Diseases.

Most of our sickness has, in late years, been traced to germ attacks.
Some germs—as in skin troubles—directly attack the tissues. Some create toxins, causing such troubles as Rheumatism, Blood Poison, Kidney Disease and nerve weakness. Some destroy vital organs, as in Consumption. Some like the germs of Catarrh—create inflammation; some cause indigestion.
In one of these ways, nearly every serious ailment is a germ result.

Such conditions call for a germicide,
not for common drugs. Liquezone does what other means cannot accomplish. And it is wrong to cling to old ways when millions of people know
a way that is better.

50c Bottle Free.

If you wish to know what Liquezone does please send us this coupon. We will then mail you an order on a local druggist for a full-size bottle, and will pay the druggist ourselves for it. This is our free gift, made to convince you;
to let the product itself show you what it can do. In justice to yourself, please accept it to-day, for it places you under no obligations whatever.

Liquezone costs 50c and $1.

INJURIES Sustained During the Quake Lead to the Death of Kingston's Mayor, Friend of America.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 11.—Charles Tait, mayor of the city, died Sunday afternoon at the Public Hospital as a result of injuries sustained at the time of the earthquake. He was then conducting a meeting of the council and the building collapsed. He was 68 years old.

It was Mayor Tait who headed the protest of the council and of the citizens of Jamaica against Governor Swettenham's boorish treatment of Admiral Davis and the American marines, who had labored so heroically in the succor of the earthquake sufferers. He also sent a personal letter of thanks to the Admiral for his noble work.

Since the earthquake there was a hostile sentiment between the deceased and the island's Chief Executive.

ONLY ONE TRAIN
OBEYED SIGNAL
OF TWENTY-FIVE

THE OTHERS DASHED PAST THE TARGET WITHOUT SLACK-ENING SPEED.

4 WERE PASSENGER TRAINS

Officials of the Lake Shore Were Hidden and Observed the Reckless Running.

Conneaut, O., Feb. 11.—While high officers of the Lake Shore railway stood hidden behind the company's tracks here Saturday night, 24 trains rushed past the signal targets here,
the light of which had been turned out as a warning that the tracks were not clear. Only one train out of 25 which rushed through here during the time the railroad officials stood on watch obeyed the signal that there was danger and stopped.

Four passenger trains were included in the list, and only two of these even slackened speed. The other two tore past the target with reckless disregard of what might be in store for them further along the track. As a result of this test it is expected that a number of train crews will be dismissed.

Aroused by the criticism heaped upon the railroads recently because of the large number of wrecks, the Lake Shore officers decided to make a test of this division of their road.

A party consisting of S. W. Brown, assistant superintendent; H. N.
Tompkins, division superintendent;
E. P. Crook, assistant superintendent;
A. E. Black, superintendent of Signals; H. K. Everett, foreman of signal maintenance; E. V. Brogan, trainmaster, and J. P. Freeman, traveling engineer, arrived here Saturday night and went to the signal tower which controls this section of the block system. They darkened the lights which signal whether or not the tracks are clear, and then they waited for developments.

Train after train flew past the tower
and the crews paid no attention whatsoever to the absence of signal lights. Out of 25 trains which the officials noted only one stopped to investigate what was wrong. This was a freight. The engine driver was complimented and probably will be the only one to retain his job.

L. & N. SWITCHMEN
GO ON A STRIKE

New Orleans, Feb. 11.—A strike was begun by local Louisville & Nashville railroad switchmen, their demands
being for $3 per day and 10 hours work. Although but 24 switchmen are involved in the strike, the situation is aggravated by extra heavy traffic of the Mardi Gras season.

Will Build Branch.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 11.—Before the end of the year, according to a statement given out by A. E. Stillwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroad, a branch of that railroad will be built to Shiford Junction,
where it will connect with the Eagle Pass branch of the Southern Pacific, connecting with the Mexican International at C. P. Diaz, Coahuila, Mexico, thus giving a direct line from Kansas City to Mexico City.

Defective Frog.

St. Louis, Feb. 11.—A westbound passenger train on the Wabash railroad was wrecked at Forsythe Junction, in the outskirts of the city, by a defective frog. The engine was overturned and Engineer Louis Wiseman was pinned underneath and probably fatally scalped. The baggage car was smashed.

Railroad Notes.

Frederick E. Sawyer of Louisville, has been appointed general freight agent of the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus, and commercial agent of the Pennsylvania lines west of Columbus, Ohio, to succeed George W.
Davis, who became general freight agent of the Vandalia. Frank G.
Maus has been promoted to succeed
Mr. Sawyer as division freight agent of the Pan Handle at Louisville.

J. Kirkpatrick, formerly master mechanic of the Cumberland division of the B. & O., is made master mechanic of the Newark division, to take the place of G. J. Devilbiss, who resigned to accept the position of superintendent of motive power of the Ohio Central. A. H. Hodges, general foreman at Brunswick, Md., has been promoted to master mechanic of the Cumberland division.

Oscar A. Constans has been promoted from division freight agent of the B. & O. at Cleveland to general freight agent in Pittsburg of the lines west of the Ohio river, in place of L. Rush Brockenbrough, is succeeded by A. J. Anderson, who is transferred from Columbus to Cleveland.

H. R. Lewis, chief clerk of the B. & O. has been promoted to chief clerk of the general freight department at Baltimore, succeeding Herbert Sheridan.

Herbert Sheridan has been promoted from chief clerk in the general freight department of the B. & O. at Baltimore, to division freight agent

at Columbus, O., succeeding A. J.
Anderson, who was promoted to division freight agent at Cleveland.— Railway World.

The B. & O. will start at once to make a number of improvements in their track and road bed on the subdivision between Mt. Vernon and Chicago Junction. Sixteen miles of new track will be laid, the first shipment of new 85 pound rails having already arrived. These rails will be used between Plymouth and New Haven.

FROM THE RANKS
MR. MORRISON ROSE

Former Newark Man Who Was Killed in Pittsburg; Began as an Engineer.

Henry Morrison, formerly trainmaster of the trans-Ohio division of the B. & O. railway who was accidentally killed in Pittsburg Friday evening by being struck on the head with a heavy wrench while unloading a car of grain, was well known in this city among the railroad men.

He started at Newark as a locomotive engineer and was soon advanced to traveling engineer. In 1889 he was made trainmaster, with headquarters at Newark.

Mr. Morrison resigned his position as trainmaster of the B. & O. in 1892
and went into the employ of the Louisville & Nashville railway. Soon after this he went into the grain business in Pittsburg.

I. M. Morrison of Gratiot is a brother of the deceased and he went to Pittsburg in response to a telegram. He telegraphed back to his home in Gratiot Sunday that interment would not be made in Newark, but did not state where it would be made.

It is the supposition of Mrs. I. M.
Morrison that the remains will be interred in Pittsburg.

A Birthday Anniversary.

Outville, Feb. 11.—Mrs. C. C. Winter was very happily and agreeably surprised on her birthday anniversary,
which occurred February 7th, 1907.
She expected some extra preparation
by her children, but did not have the least idea of the elaborate preparation gotten up by her daughters in her honor.

The two daughters at home, Georgia and Jessie, were the general munagers, and were ably assisted by the two daughters from Columbus, Mrs.
Maud Clark and Mrs. Clyde Moore.
The little granddaughter, Miss Maude Moore, aided in the entertainment by her talent in recitations.

The only son, Chester, who is attending college at Denison University in Granville, left his studies and came home to honor his mother on this day,
and to enjoy the pleasure of the occasion.

Two sisters of Mrs. Winters, and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. J. Willis Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartshorn, came over from Newark
by cordial invitation by the two daughters, Jessie and Georgia. Miss Celia Glick, another sister, from Newark, was on hand in full evidence, by her usual affable ways. Mrs. George W. Patterson, a sister, also from Columbus, graced the occasion with her presence, but it was most sincerely
regretted by all that her husband, Mr.
George W. Patterson, was detained in Columbus by the funeral of his uncle,
Mr. Charles Moore was also absent
on account of business in Columbus.
His absence was much regretted.

To complete the surprise, about 11 o'clock, the Ladies Aid Society came in a body to do honor to Mrs. Winter, and to assure her of their high regard
and esteem, as one of their society.

A sumptuous and superb dinner was served by the daughters from 1 to 2 o'clock p. m. I will not attempt to describe the menu, but will simply say that it was voted by all present as a
"plenty" and, "good enough," "par excellence."

The Aid society held their monthly session in the parlors during the afternoon, which was duly appreciated by all.

The following are members of the society: Mrs. May Avery, Mrs. W. D.
Danford, Mrs. E. P. Rugg, Mrs. Dr.
Lethman, Mrs. W. H. Camp, Mrs. E.
Boecher, Mrs. E. Pendleton, Mrs.
Frank Wells, Mrs. Lou Gamble, Mrs.
S. P. Wells, Mrs. Parren, Miss Belle Larimore, Miss Wylie.

May this day ever shine as a star
along the pathway of her life throughout the remaining years of her pilgrimage on the great highway of life, is the ardent wish of her many friends.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Boys' Sunday Club.

Rev. Mr. Cosgrove made the address yesterday afternoon, taking for his subject "Two Games." The speaker made a fine straight forward manly, Christian talk. One of the games illustrated was "lacrosse," the other being "The Game of Life."

Next Sunday, Prof. Simkins will talk to the club, his subject being "What's the Use of Boys?"

MOTHERHOOD

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,
which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone
and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.
Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 427 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at the trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me.
I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women.
It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Drugging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.
Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.

L. D. PALMER DIED
OF HEMORRHAGE

SUDDEN CALLING OF A NEWARK MAN AT CHARLOTTE, MICH.,
SUNDAY.

He Had Just Taken a Hot Bath and His Death Followed Soon After.

Louis DeWitt Palmer, a traveling man of Newark, O., died suddenly at a sanitarium in Charlotte, Mich., Sunday morning. He took a warm bath and death soon followed. The attending physician said his death was the result of a cerebral hemorrhage. No inquest was called.

Mr. Palmer traveled for a Columbus hardware concern, in which his brother is a partner.

The remains were shipped to Newark and Bowers & Criss Bros. were notified that the body would arrive Monday midnight. It will be taken at once to the home 189 Buchanan street, where the funeral will be held.
Mrs. Palmer, wife of the deceased, was notified of the death by wire Sunday.

The funeral services will be held at the house at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and will be conducted by the Rev. L. C. Sparks.

Hotel Fire.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 11.—A careful investigation has failed to reveal any one missing as a result of the fire which destroyed the Mowry hotel in this city. Although the hotel register was consumed and there is no list of the guests to refer to, it is now thought that all have been accounted for. The property loss will aggregate $250,000.

Case Dismissed.

Topeka, Kan., Feb. 11.—The supreme court finally dismissed the cases against Chauncey Dewey, the millionaire ranchman, and his cowboys, Clyde Wilson and W. J. McBride, charged with taking part in the killing of the Berry family in western Kansas in 1903.

THROTTLE OF LOCOMOTIVE SLIPPED AND B. & O. ENGINE RAN AWAY

Crashing Through the Wall of the B. & O. Round House Carrying With it Machinist Aloysius Klecker, Who Was Terribly Mangled Dying Instantly.

B. & O. engine No. 1923 ran away Saturday midnight while being fired, and forced its way through a 12 inch brick wall of the new round house, mangled Joseph A. Klecker and instantly killing him.

The dead man, who resided with his mother, Mrs. Mary Klecker, at 37 Wilson street, has been for many years an employee of the B. & O. he in the capacity of machinist. Saturday night at the time of the accident Klecker, with his helper, known as "Smoky" Lehue, was sitting in front of the engine leaning against a steam heater and is believed to have been asleep.

The throttle of the engine was no in the lock and when steam began to accumulate the throttle slipped and the engine started forward. The tracks in the new roundhouse extend to within about two feet of the wall of the building, and the runaway engine traveled for about 15 feet before striking the wall against which the unfortunate man was leaning. With a crash the iron monster passed through the wall, carrying Klecker in front of it and was not stopped until it had passed for about 20 feet outside of the building. The engine was not damaged and was sent out Sunday morning.

Machinist Klecker was badly mangled, the lower portion of the body being literally cut to pieces. His arms were broken above the elbow and the left leg was broken at the ankle. The dead man was born in Bohemia and was 48 years old. He was known about the B. & O. and signed on the pay roll as Joseph Jungbl.

The body was taken to Powers & Cross Bros' morgue and prepared for burial, after which it was removed to the home, 38 Wilson street. The funeral will probably be held under the auspices of the Eagles' lodge, and will take place Tuesday at St. John's German church, South Fifth street.

edly, "Why don't you marry me?" I said, "I won't." He said, "Is it because of Stanford White?" I said, "Yes, it is because of Stanford White."

Evelyn Nesbit was a husband.

Choate to Aid Prosecution.
New York, Feb. 11.—District Attorney Jerome, it is reliably reported, has about decided that extreme measures are necessary to defend the character of Stanford White. The prosecution, therefore, is considering the propriety of retaining as counsel, to sum up, Joseph H. Choate. When the defense heard of this proposed move it was said that a United States Senator, one of the foremost debaters and leaders of the upper body, was under consideration to make the summing up for the defense. If Mr. Choate is retained by the district attorney this senator will probably oppose him for Thaw. The district attorney has left no stone unturned to obtain testimony to controvert the story told by Mrs. Thaw.

The possibility that Thaw might get beyond control and make a sensational scene in the courtroom is worrying his legal advisers. Thaw was greatly disturbed after his wife had lifted the veil from her face on Thursday, and is said to have put his foot down hard on any more of her life secrets being told in court, either through questions asked by his counsel or by the district attorney. He told his advisers Saturday that he would rather have gone to the electric chair than to have heard and seen his wife tell of her ruin. The strain of the past few days has told severely on Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, and it is stated that the prisoner had come to her rescue and demanded a respite for his wife. Upon her visit to the Tombs Mrs. Thaw told her husband that she had suffered greatly during the ordeal when her associations with White were laid bare, and Thaw communicated the fact to the attorneys. He told them that his wife was in bad shape and requested that she be given an opportunity to recover herself.

Another development that startled those directly concerned in the case

was the reported illness of a juror. Visions of a mistrial were soon dispelled, however, for it was ascertained that the illness of the juror was not such as threatened to incapacitate him. Wilbur F. Steele, 60, has contracted a severe cold.

Attorney Delmas of the defense will attempt to get in evidence Harry Thaw's will, which was ruled out on Friday because the many interlineations in "this somewhat cumbersome document," as Mr. Jerome referred to it, had not been sufficiently proved. This will consists of about 60 pages, some closely typewritten and others in the large handwriting of the defendant. Justice Fitzgerald held that the will must be shown to have been in its present condition when it was signed. Mr. Delmas is very anxious to have this will go in evidence, believing it will go further than any other documentary proof he can produce to show the effect of Evelyn Nesbit's story of her treatment at the hands of Stanford White had upon the mind of the defendant. It leaked out that one of the provisions in Harry Thaw's will is the setting aside of a sum of $50,000 for the prosecution of all persons who may be concerned in case of the death of the testator by violence. The probable instigator of the anticipated act of violence is said to be revealed in the provision. Another paragraph in the will, it is reported, made provision for a fund for the benefit of young women who, the will declared, suffered treatment at the hands of the dead man similar to that of his wife's.

WOMEN PROTEST

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 11.—A mass meeting of women was held at the First Baptist church for the purpose of protesting against the printing in the daily papers of the revolting details in the Thaw murder case and all other criminal court proceedings of a like nature. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. R. D. Wilson, president of the local Woman's Christian Temperance union. The auditorium of the church was filled with women, while only a few men were present. A short address was made by Mayor W. L. Frierson. The protest, it was stated, was made "in the interest of the sanctity of our homes and the purity of our children."

APPROVES THAW'S ACT.
Providence, R. I., Feb. 11.—In a sermon delivered here by Rev. C. M. Meldon he said: "I don't know whether Thaw will have to die for his act or not, but he did a good thing when he put Stanford White out of the way."

DEPENDS DUELING SYSTEM.

London, Feb. 11.—The lack of a dueling code in the United States is responsible for the slaying of Stanford White by Harry Thaw, and Thaw, in taking the punishment of White into his own hands was fully justified. This is the opinion advanced by Dr. Emile Reich, the famous English lawyer and lecturer. "The real murderers are American society, American legislation, American institutions," said Reich. "For none takes into consideration an insult to a mere individual in America the individual is lost in the one hundred million Americans."

Fishermen Destitute.

Naples, Feb. 11.—The government has sent troops and assistance to Marina Di Catanzaro, the fishing village on the Calabrian coast, where a tidal wave destroyed 123 houses and rendered the population homeless and destitute. The conditions there are made more severe because of incessant rains. The storm also did serious damage in the province of Tosenza, numerous villages being flooded.

Music room and a section of the dormitory of the Centenary Female college, Cleveland, Tenn., were destroyed by fire. All the students escaped. Among the property destroyed were 15 pianos.

EVELYN OMITTED ON THE STAND

MANY REVOLTING FEATURES OF FIENDISH DEEDS OF STAN-FORD WHITE.

Which, if She Had Told, Says Delmas
Would Make Any Jury Clear
Harry Thaw.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 11.—After a brief visit here Delphin Michael Delmas, counsel for Harry K. Thaw, who arrived in Philadelphia Saturday night left for New York Sunday evening. During the day he attended mass at St. John's church, and took an automobile ride through the park.

"I was not here on any matter connected with the Thaw case," said Mr. Delmas, "but came to Philadelphia for precisely the opposite reason—to get rid of the Thaw case for a day or two. But while here I learned all I could about the case of Harriet Thaw, who is a cousin of Harry Thaw, who is confined now in Frankfort asylum. As to what we shall do in the morning when court opens I cannot speak for several reasons. First, I am a lawyer and have my client's interest to protect. Next, I really do not know what will be done. My colleagues in New York no doubt, have been discussing the matter and have determined what is best. I can only add my voice at the conference."

"I am much encouraged with the present outlook in the case. I think the jury must have been impressed with Evelyn's story."

Chatting about the dramatic story unfolded by the girl wife, Delmas said:

"Before we put Evelyn Nesbit Thaw on the stand I heard her story but once. There was no rehearsal, no attempt at dramatic play."

"The story as she told it in the court room is not half as tragic as it was when she told it to me during our preparation of the case. If she had told in court the details she told me, there is not a jury in the wide world that would convict Harry Thaw."

"Only once in my life have I been so touched with emotion as I was when Evelyn Nesbit Thaw told me her story. That was at the grave of my father, when the last clod of earth was thrown on his coffin."

"As I sat there, as a lawyer, listening to the girl narrate the story of what she had suffered at the hands of Stanford White, the tears welled into my eyes and I fairly sobbed."

"She told me then that when she awoke and found Stanford White leaning over her in that mirrored bed room he seemed to her like a big gorilla."

"His hair was disheveled, and the look on his face was like an animal. I screamed with terror," she told me. She added many details which if she had told to the jury, there would have been no need on her part to produce further evidence. As we had not rehearsed our part I depended simply on her memory as to facts, the present of the crowded court room disconcerted her to the extent that she omitted some of the revolting features of that fatal night."

SUCH A HEADACHE
And So Excited is Barrymore He Can Not Talk on the Thaw Case.

Poland Springs, Maine, Feb. 11.—Jack Barrymore, the actor, brother of Ethel Barrymore, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since Thursday last, when his name was mentioned in the Thaw trial, was located Saturday in seclusion at the Mansion House, Poland Springs, Me.

Mr. Barrymore is in an excitable state of mind. His talk and actions are those of a man who is greatly perturbed. He went to his apartments upon arriving at the hotel, and had his supper sent to his room. He refused again Sunday to discuss the points brought out in the Thaw trial, and especially resented the inquiry as to whether he had proposed marriage to Evelyn Nesbit as testified to by her.

He is at the Poland Springs house by advice of his physician. He will not go to New York unless made to do so by extradition papers. He did not suppose that any one would learn of his whereabouts and evidently regrets that the fact has been ascertained.

"I came up here," he said, to rest. I have a horrible cold and am throaty."

Advice of the largest coffee dealers in the world is always to buy the old-fashioned Arbuckles' ARIOSIA Coffee in the sealed packages. Don't ask for a pound of Mocha and Java, or buy by the price, for Coffee fluctuates and you cannot get the same coffee for the same price all the time unless you pay too much for it. Most of the so-called Mocha and Java Coffee is simply masquerading, and is not nearly as good coffee for you as Arbuckles' ARIOSIA, the blend of the Brazilian Coffees most suitable to the taste and health of American people. By the looks there is no difference between roasted Java and Brazilian Coffees; many people drink Brazilian but pay for Java. The principal difference is that Arbuckles' costs you less. It is a mistake to believe that a high price guarantees quality. When you buy Arbuckles' ARIOSIA Coffee, you get a full one pound package of the leading Coffee of the world. Its sales for 37 years are greater than the combined sales of all the other packaged coffees. By giving better Coffee for the money, we have built up a business exceeding the combined businesses of the four next largest coffee firms in the whole world. If your dealer will not supply the genuine, write to ARBUCKLE BROS., New York City.

ened with pneumonia. I went to a physician in Boston and he advised me to come here. I am in such shape that I could not go to New York even though I were summoned. I have not been summoned. I don't even want to go to Boston. I want to stay here and rest and get well.

"About any statements that Mrs. Thaw has made I can say nothing. My head has hurt so much that I have done little reading. Even if I had read everything that has been printed about the trial I could not be expected to discuss anything in connection with it."

Mr. Taylor a Father.
The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Taylor are pleased to learn of the birth of a son, John Christian Taylor, at the family home on South Fifth street, Sunday, February 3, 1907. The mother and son are getting along nicely.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Of Lock Have Almost Been Broken Up on Account of Scourge of Measles.

The public schools of Lock have been almost deserted for some days, only a few of the pupils being in attendance. The trouble has been an epidemic of measles with which a large number of children have been ill. It is probable that the schools will close for a few days.

FARM RESIDENCE

Near Lock Burned on Saturday, But Nearly All Household Effects Were Saved.

The farm house on the Harriett Mitchell farm, one and a half miles west of Lock, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue. The property was occupied by James Van Arsdale and family, who succeeded in saving nearly all the household effects. The property was partially insured. The owner resides in Springfield, O.
